LABOUR MPs SAY NO TO EU REFERENDUM

Pressure grows for public vote

LABOUR MPs in Kent have given an overwhelming thumbs down to calls for a referendum on the new EU reform treaty.

Pressure is growing for a public vote on the document, which replaced the EU constitution and is due to be formally signed in Brussels next month.

Critics say the treaty is virtually identical to the controversial EU constitution, which was rejected after votes in France and Holland two years ago.

A growing number of Labour MPs are keen to see a referendum to clear the air. But a poll by Kent on Sunday shows none of the county's Labour MPs agree.

Conservative leader David Cameron is among those calling for a public vote on the treaty.

demanding a referendum on Saturday, September 22 in Rochester, Maidstone, Deal and Ramsgate. Further events are planned for October in Kent.

Prime Minister Gordon Brown said this week that he would call a referendum if the final treaty did not protect the UK's "red lines", but made it clear that was unlikely.

Jonathan Shaw, member for Chatham and Aylesford and Minister for the South East, is Labour's most senior representative in Kent. He is against a referendum.

"The Government has made clear its position and we don't anticipate the need for one," he said.

Dr Stephen Ladyman, MP for South Thanet and vice-chairman of the Labour Party, said there would need to be a referendum every year if one was granted, because the treaty is being reviewed and changed regularly.

He said: "The correct way to deal with this treaty is debate in Parliament. The contentious parts of the treaty have been removed, so there is no need for a referendum."

Dr Howard Stoate, member for Dartford, said: "This is a very technical document - extremely difficult to understand - and I think the chances of making it into a format that ordinary people can understand will be exceptionally difficult."

'Brown is seeking to deny us voting right'

Nick Raynsford, MP for Greenwich and Woolwich, said there was no need for a referendum on the treaty.

But he said: "If we were to join the Euro, then I think that is an issue of such constitutional importance, then there should be a referendum. They should only be held on things which have major constitutional importance."

Clive Efford, MP for Eltham, said there should not be a referendum, as he said there was nothing important enough in the reform treaty to put to the country.

Gwyn Prosser, the MP for Dover, and Paul Clark, the MP for Gillingham, both said there was no need for a referendum.

Derek Wyatt, the MP for Sittingbourne and Sheppey, and Bob Marshall-Andrews, the MP for Medway, did not respond to calls for comment.

Nationally, Labour MPs including Gisele Stuart, who was one of those who drafted the original constitution, said people should be given a referendum.

"This is an issue of trust," she said. "We were elected on the promise of a referendum."

Former Labour Cabinet minister David Blunkett said he thought the new treaty has a "substantial amount" of the detail of the scrapped constitution. And last week, the former Europe Minister Keith Vaz said the British people should be given the chance to have their say on the treaty.

Roger Gale, Tory MP for North Thanet, insisted the treaty should be put to the public vote.

He said: "The draft constitutional treaty is no more and no less than a thinly veiled attempt to reintroduce the European constitution under another name."

"Blair, as Prime Minister, promised the British people would have their say in a referendum. Brown, as Prime Minister, is seeking to deny us that right and wants to force approval for a fundamental constitutional change through Parliament alone."

Last month, a poll by KoS showed that six of Kent's 10 MEPs would like to see a referendum.

Promises

At the time, Daniel Hannan, Tory MEP for the South East and the first person to call for a referendum on the European constitution, said the EU reform treaty was identical.

He said it would give the European Union a head of state, foreign office and diplomatic core, a legal system, as well as the "legal personality" of a sovereign state, which would allow it to join the UN and negotiate treaties.

Mr Hannan stressed that the Labour government had promised a referendum in 2004 and 2005.

The MEP and Tory activist Janice Small has organised the EU action day on September 22.

In a statement, they asked Mr Brown: "What makes you think you can break your promises to the British people? And what makes you think you can change the way our country is governed without asking the British people first?"

Meanwhile, a survey for the Daily Telegraph claimed two thirds of people would vote against moving more power to Brussels.

■ IT would be too early to call a general election this year, say Kent's Labour MPs.

There has been growing speculation that the Prime Minister is considering going to the polls before the end of the year.

At a press conference this week, Gordon Brown would not be drawn on the idea of a snap election, instead saying he was concentrating on "getting on with the job of governing".

Kent Labour MPs spoken to by Kent on Sunday said there was no need for a general election yet, but said they would be ready if one was called – and were confident they would win.

Gwyn Prosser, member for Dover and Deal, said: "I am ready for an election fight, but I believe it will be May next year at the earliest."

John Austin, MP for Erith and Thamesmead, said: "There is no need for an election this year. Gordon Brown is doing a great job and should be left to get on with it."

Holidaymaker sick to stomach after seeing faeces in hotel pool

A HOLIDAYMAKER is suing a travel agent after she caught a nasty stomach bug in Egypt.

Pauline Moore, from Snodland, went on holiday to the five-star Radisson Taba hotel in the Sinai Peninsula.

She was shocked to see the swimming pool had human faeces floating in it.

"We complained to the management and their response was to rope off half of the pool and sprinkle a bit of powder," she said. "I was expecting them to drain the pool, clean it and then refill it."

Mrs Moore claimed that she, along with three friends who also stayed at the hotel, had suffered from gastric illness, with symptoms including diarrhoea and severe stomach cramps.

She has now launched a legal action with Irwin Mitchell solicitors against the travel agent, Libra Holidays, of Hertfordshire.

A spokeswoman for Libra Holidays said: "The matter is under full investigation by our legal department and we are following standard customer service procedure."

The spokeswoman said it was too early to say if the company would dispute the legal action.

WINNER: Tracey Emin

Tracey is Woman of the Year

ARTIST Tracey Emin was named Woman of the Year in this week's GQ Awards, held at the Royal Opera House in London.

She was presented with her award by actor James Nesbitt.

It caps a successful 2007 for Miss Emin, from Margate, who was elected to the Royal Academy of the Arts in March.

The 44-year-old's art takes many forms, including painting, drawing, sculpture, film, photography and needlework.

But she remains most famous for her work "My Bed" which consisted of an unmade bed, dirty sheets, used condoms and blood-stained underwear.

Former Gurkhas could be called on for natural disasters and terrorist attacks

Ready for action

PLANS to set up a paramilitary force of 1,000 former Gurkhas to help deal with natural disasters or terrorist attacks have been welcomed by the Nepalese expat community in Kent.

Group 4 Securicor (G4S) believes the unit could take the place of the Army by cordoning off disaster scenes, helping evacuate victims and guarding against looters.

Skills

The Gurkhas would be unarmed, but given powers like private security guards so they can use citizens' arrests or even be allowed to stop and search, if instructed to by a senior police officer.

The disaster response force could have been used to help clear up after this summer's flooding in Gloucestershire, say G4S, which has put the proposals to the Government.

Cllr Dhan Gurung, a former Gurkha in the British Army for nearly 20 years – and now serves on Folkestone Town Council – was pleased with the plans.

He said the skills of many former

By JAMIE MCGINNES

jamie.mcginnes@kosmedia.co.uk

Gurkhas who remain in Britain are wasted because they end up in factory or security guard jobs.

"That's not using their skills to the benefit of the country," said the 40-year-old, who served in areas including Afghanistan, Bosnia, Brunei and Sierra Leone.

"I would like to request that the British government, if there's any possible way to fund that kind of service for the Gurkhas... it would be really, really useful and of great value for the country."

Cllr Gurung, who lives in Cheriton, is now a senior security officer for the Home Office in Folkestone.

David Taylor-Smith, chief executive of G4S's security service division, recently met Home Office Security Minister Lord West of Spithead to discuss the idea of the new force.

Mr Taylor-Smith said: "We could deploy people at short notice to assist emergency services with a variety of tasks including cordon, access control, search, scene-of-crime protection and evacuation."

Kent is home to the 2nd Battalion Royal Gurkha Rifles, based at Shorncliffe, Folkestone. The troops are renowned for their fearsome conduct in battle and bravery.

Nearly half of the soldiers from the Maidstone-based 36 Engineers Regiment sent to Afghanistan this week are Queen's Gurkha Engineers.

A Kent spokesman for the Army would not comment on the G4S plans for the Nepalese-born former soldiers to be recruited into a disaster response force.

But he said: "The reputation of the Gurkhas is such that they are often in demand in the private security sector upon leaving the service of the British Army."

Ex-Army head says the MoD cares more about targets than soldiers

THE former head of the Army, Sir Mike Jackson, has accused the Ministry of Defence of caring more about red tape than servicemen.

In his memoirs, Sir Mike said bureaucrats were more interested in meeting targets than ensuring troops were properly equipped, housed and correctly compensated.

Sir Mike, who was Chief of the General Staff during the invasion of Iraq, was trained in Ashford after being commissioned into the Intelligence Corps in 1963 at the age of 19.

He specialised in the threat posed by the Soviet Union, before transferring to the Parachute Regiment in 1970.

In his memoirs, Sir Mike says: "I didn't always find the MoD wholehearted about the interests of the soldiers."

"I was constantly battling the civil servants."

"I'd come back from a visit and say, 'We've got to do something about the state of those barracks,' but it was like trying to fight your way through cotton wool. A soldier's approach is very straightforward: this is the problem, all right, give me the tools and let's crack on. Bureaucrats are not like that at all."

A spokeswoman for the MoD said: "Mike Jackson obviously retired and he has a right to his opinion."

'The withdrawal from Basra is because Army is overstretched'

THE Government has come under fire for failing to properly fund the armed forces.

War hero Colonel Tim Collins said the British withdrawal from Basra in Iraq was because the Army was overstretched.

The 550 soldiers this week handed Basra Palace over to Iraqi control and joined 5,000 troops at the UK's last base, near the airport, outside the city.

The Ministry of Defence said the handover of Basra province was now due in the autumn.

Col Collins, who lives in Whitstable, said: "The Army is overstretched in Iraq and cannot support all the operations."

"Before the Afghanistan deployment, many of us pointed out that the Army just wasn't big enough to cover all the things they wanted to do."

Col Collins added: "They are trying to portray this withdrawal as a planned thing. I think that is being slightly disingenuous, but only time will tell."

Julian Brazier, MP for Canterbury and co-chair of the All-Party Reserve Forces Group, said: "It's very disappointing that the Government committed to two major operations but didn't commit the resources, both in military terms and in backup terms."

"By that I mean things like international development, rebuilding bridges and roads and all the rest, which would have enabled them to achieve as much as they hoped to achieve in both Iraq and Afghanistan."

"In Iraq, the failure to put enough troops on the ground early meant they had a much, much more dangerous and difficult task."

"As well as costing British troops' lives, it means we are not leaving it in as good a condition than we would have liked."

"Under the circumstances our soldiers did remarkably well."

British troops have been in Iraq since the war started in 2003 and so far 168 have been killed.

AN OFFICIAL report on mental healthcare in Kent based on the views of patients has exposed serious concerns about the quality of services.

The Healthcare Commission surveyed users of community mental health services in 69 NHS trusts around the country.

In Kent, many users said they were not receiving the care and support they needed and experienced difficulties accessing counselling and treatment in a crisis.

The survey found 70 per cent of service users in Kent were not offered counselling or 'talking therapy', compared to a third of patients nationally. And 51 per cent of patients said they were unable to access help in a crisis out of hours.

The watchdog's report found the needs of carers and those who provided support for people with ongoing mental health conditions were not always being addressed.

In Kent, 39 per cent of patients said the support was not there for their carers and loved ones.

Crisis care

Kent on Sunday spoke to a senior psychiatrist who works in the county to gain a clinical perspective on the survey's findings.

The doctor, who asked not to be named, said there was a shortage of psychologists in parts of Kent and although psychiatrists wanted to prescribe talking therapies – which is helpful to many patients with depression – there was a six to 12 month wait.

Access to out-of-hours crisis care in Thanet, Maidstone and Folkestone was reputed to be poor, said the doctor.

And a lack of beds in mental health wards was reaching 'crisis point', warned the doctor, who said care in the community worked but only if there were hospital beds to back it up.

People with severe psychiatric disorders sometimes had to be admitted to wards, or they could be a danger to themselves and others, said the doctor.

In west Kent, NHS managers recently scrapped plans for a mental health unit at the new £225 million Pembury PFI hospital, near Tunbridge Wells.

Members of mental health organisations and support groups expressed anger and concern over the decision.

Report exposes mental health concerns

The trust said a move towards providing more care in the community was behind the decision to suspend work on the 42-bed unit planned for Pembury.

But the county's service users and carers, as the report suggested, did not believe the support was available in the community – especially in crisis situations.

Other Kent statistics from the survey include: 97 per cent of patients were on medication but only 22 per cent had any say in it; the possible side effects of the medication were not explained to 39 per cent of patients; 48 per cent of service users were not offered access to their care plan and 33 per cent of patients in Kent sectioned under the Mental Health Act did not have their rights explained.

The Kent and Medway NHS and Social Care Partnership Trust, which is responsible for mental health services in the county, said it has launched a review of all mental health services in the west of the county.

A trust spokesman said mental health services in east Kent were subject to a major redevelopment.

'Surprise'

He denied claims there was a shortage of beds in the east of the county and said there were no problems with access to out-of-hours crisis services.

He said the trust was aware that patients are waiting too long to see psychologists and said it was working to reduce times and improve the service.

Regarding the commission's report, the spokesman said: "When compared nationally to the progress made by other mental health trusts it is clear we have more work to do."

"These results come as a surprise to the trust and although disappointed, we are already examining the results and working towards an action plan which will address the areas where progress has not been as good as it has nationally."

He said improved access to counselling and the needs of carers was high on the trust's agenda and would continue to be priorities.

Campaign to save 59 Kent post offices

KENT County Council has launched a campaign to save the 59 post offices thought to be facing the axe in the county.

The Government plans to close 2,500 branches by the end of next year and Kent will be one of the first counties to go through the process.

"Use it or lose it" is KCC's message and people power can prevent closures across the county, the authority's leader, Cllr Paul Carter believes.

A six-week consultation period will be launched when Post Office Ltd finalises its list of branches earmarked for closure, which is believed to be on September 17.

Cllr Carter said closures would have a knock-on effect, leading to the loss of shops and other services in some villages.

"Particularly in rural areas they are a support network for a number of people, vulnerable people, where they are providing a valuable service to the community."

Cllr Carter added: "The success of the campaign will depend on people power and the amount of noise we can make with Government."

Sean Carter, rural retail consultant for Action with Communities in Rural Kent, said: "I can see what they [KCC] are saying about use it or lose it but it is a bit late now."

A spokesman for Post Office Ltd would not confirm the figure of 59 branches used by KCC is correct, saying no numbers were definite at the moment.

Still in PAIN ?

Chiropractic Treatment may be the answer to your problems

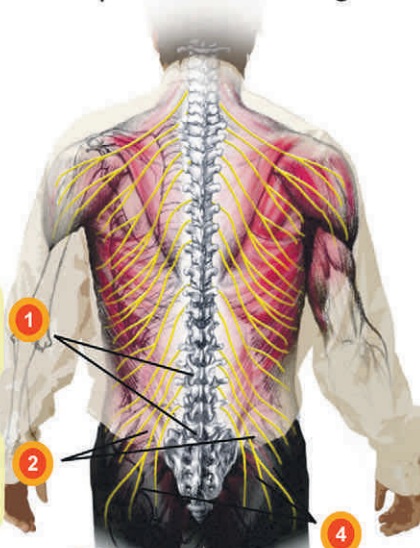

Back Pain - poor posture, previous injuries or a sedentary lifestyle over time can lead to spinal vertebrae misalignment

Misaligned vertebrae cause the joints between them to jam up resulting in pain & stiffness

When vertebral joints jam up, muscles overlying tighten (spasm) to protect the spine (guarding)

Over time, lack of proper movement results in degeneration of the bones joints & intervertebral discs (arthritis).

Degeneration can then interfere with (trap) spinal nerves leading to sciatica or numbness in your legs or feet

Conserving our historic Cutty Sark

I HAD expected sun-filled workshops with craftsmen lovingly painting the famous figurehead of the young and beautiful witch called Nannie, or people polishing up the ship's brass bell until it gleamed.

So when I arrived to visit the Cutty Sark project in Chatham Dockyard there was a real surprise in store. I found the parts of the 137-year-old tea clipper lying in the open, and the skilled work being done by a young and dedicated team.

The workshop is a small lockup container, doubling as a tea hut, and it is all wedged in a corner of the famous ex-Royal Navy shipyard just yards from the sea wall.

Heritage

Ian Bell, the conservation technical manager, said the Cutty Sark project is fulfilling its original Heritage Lottery funding application. Not only is the fabric of the Cutty Sark to be conserved as far as possible but the project plans to become a centre of excellence and education for conservation skills.

The project, underway before the fire, will involve as many local people as possible. Young people from disadvantaged backgrounds and ex-offenders are among the workforce. "We want to fill a vacuum that can be continued long after the Cutty Sark project is finished," said Mr Bell.

Brought up in Kent, the 39-year-old grew up with boats. A rigger by trade, he first worked as a fisherman from Dover, then moved to traditional oyster smack restoration at Faversham. Later he became closely involved with the replica sailing ship Discovery.

"I have seen people who have had their lives turned around," he said proudly. "The experience of working on such a fabulous ship is something they will take pride from for the rest of their lives."

The clipper was damaged by fire in May. Luckily, its fabric had already been moved to Chatham for work. HUW POWELL reports on the project

BACK TO LIFE: The clipper's fabric at Chatham Dockyard; and technical manager Ian Bell

The Cutty Sark was launched in 1870, and cost £10,000 to build. She was the pinnacle of commercial sailing ship construction; 280 feet long and 36 feet wide, her designer Hercules Linton, gave her an expected life span of less than 25 years.

Made for a hard commercial working life there was a lack of finesse in the overall finish. "She was built by big blokes using big bits of wood," said Mr Bell.

Her beauty comes from the graceful form that evolved from her sole function, to be the fastest commercial sailing ship in the world.

The tea trade she took part in was the most lucrative cargo of the time, and on the Cutty Sark's first trip from Shanghai, the tea she carried was valued at £100,000 when it arrived in London; ten times the cost of her original construction.

Mr Bell said that she was a racing ship, roughly built and working as close to the point of structural failure that the builders could get away with.

Many of the valuable and more fragile items that have survived the fire in May are in storage in Greenwich in a stable environment. Conservation work at Chatham Dockyard involves among other things, the masts, rigging, deckhouses and hull planking, all quite able to lead an outdoor life.

Mr Bell said these are parts made to endure hostile environments, so a damp English summer holds little threat. He added that from the deck upwards the Cutty Sark could go sailing tomorrow.

But the overall aim of the project is conservation, not restoration. Because 97 per cent of the original hull remains, unlike those of other famous historic ships such as HMS Victory in Portsmouth where only two per cent of the old warhorse is original, the emphasis is to conserve for future generations.

The idea that she could ever sail again is not in the equation. Although a distant possibility, the work needed to achieve modern safety standards would destroy far too much of the original fabric.

It would also result in only a privileged few being able to enjoy her unique atmosphere, so conservation is the primary objective which will allow access to as many people as possible in the coming years.

Before leaving the site, I walk alone around the items laid out on the ancient dockyard ground; the windlass and anchor, wire rigging, huge blocks, piles of teak planking, her masts and spars, all of it waiting for tender, loving care from the conservation team.

It suddenly seems quite correct for it to be in the open and without rustic theme park frills. This is how the Cutty Sark was originally constructed: in a rough dockyard by hardy and skilled men. This is how a working shipyard would have looked, not a museum of brown-coated technicians, but a gritty and physical environment.

If the builders from 140 years ago could visit, they would feel quite at home in Chatham Dockyard. They would know that their beautiful and proud Cutty Sark is in safe hands and getting ready for her next great adventure.

New papers out next week

KOS Media launches eight new free papers and websites next week.

The new products will provide readers with a free, localised service which will feature the latest news, views and sport from your area.

The full colour papers are: yourcanturbury, yourmaidstone, yourmedway, yourshepway, yoursware, yourdover, yourashford and yourthanet.

The websites, which will regularly update with the latest stories, will have the same name, with co.uk.

These quality free papers and websites are from the same stable as the award-winning Kent on Sunday, the Saturday Observer and kentnews.co.uk.

The launch this week coincides with Kent on Sunday's fifth anniversary edition. It is exactly five years since KoS took the county by storm, offering a unique service to the people of Kent.

It is envisaged that these local newspapers and websites, as well as our new online TV service, yourkenttv.co.uk, will develop a similar reputation within their local areas.

KOS Media managing director Paul Stannard said: "Media is changing faster than at any time in a generation and people want media on demand and they expect it to be high quality, trustworthy and free.

"We have been blown away by the support shown by advertisers and the business community and everyone is really behind these exciting launches. What people will see in the coming weeks will be just the start as these services will grow and evolve very much like KoS did."

The new papers will be available from Wednesday at all good newsagents, supermarkets, petrol stations and other news retailers.

Retailers are expected to see a huge rise in footfall through their businesses which will lead to increased trade.

From Wednesday, readers can easily upload their own films on our new website, www.yourkenttv.co.uk.

A competition has been launched for the best uploaded clip, with the winner receiving £500. The clip with the most views will win (terms and conditions apply. The editor's decision is final). It closes September 30.

To enter, upload to the website or send us the clip by CD at yourkenttv.co.uk, KOS Media, Apple Barn, Hythe Road, Smeeth, Ashford, Kent, TN25 6SR.

KCC media service coming soon

THE county council unveils its new broadband service within weeks.

Seven Kent production firms have won contracts to produce films for the publicly funded web broadcasting service.

A KCC spokesman said the companies will produce about 28 video programmes for the launch phase of the new channel.

The channel, called Kent TV, is being launched by KCC, but is being operated by an independent media company, Ten Alps Digital.

Sir Bob Geldof, who helped found Ten

Alps, is expected to be present at the launch at Maidstone Studios on September 21.

The companies commissioned are: Capricorn Productions, from Maidstone, Kent Barker Productions, from Cranbrook, Kersh Media, from West Malling, Lavender Blue Media, from Sittingbourne, Life TV Media, from Maidstone, Peter Williams Television, from Faversham, and Pilgrim Productions, from Ashford.

The two-year project will cost taxpayers £1.4million.

Facebook ban protest by hospital employees

STAFF at Medway NHS Trust have been banned from accessing the social networking internet site Facebook.

Bosses said they restricted the website in order to "optimise efficiency" among employees.

But staff this week hit back by setting up a Facebook site to protest against the ban.

The trust – which runs Medway Maritime Hospital – employs 3,500 people.

Andy Horne, the trust's chief executive, said: "Recently a decision was taken by the IT and operations department to add a number of sites, including Facebook, to the restricted list.

"This is part of work ongoing within the trust to monitor internet usage and optimise efficiency.

"While the trust has no objection to staff accessing the internet for personal reasons during breaks, we reserve the right to limit access in any way we deem necessary and maintain a strict policy of correct and acceptable internet usage."

The Facebook site has been the subject of much recent controversy with a number of prominent organisations, including Kent County Council, banning staff from accessing it at work.

The Trade Unions Congress condemned the move last week as an "over-reaction", saying staff should be trusted more.

But Medway Council has gone against the trend and has no plans to introduce such a ban.

Staff are allowed to log on to check personal mail so long as it is done during breaks or after work.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR RUBBISH

You wouldn't use an unlicensed taxi.

So why use an unlicensed waste remover?

The law now states that if you have any of your rubbish removed and it ends up being flytipped, you could be held responsible and fined. When dealing with waste removal services or tradesmen where rubbish will be generated, like builders, plumbers, gardening contractors, always ask them for a valid waste carriers licence.

Follow these 3 simple steps to help protect yourself and the environment.

HOW TO CHECK

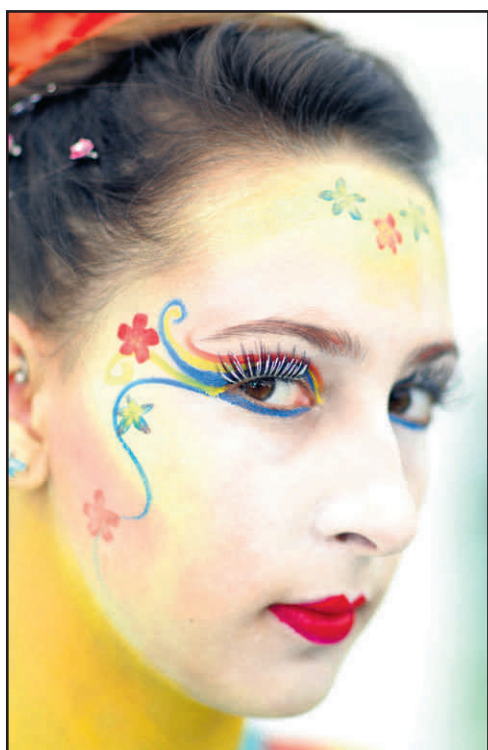

- 1 Ask the waste removal service/tradesman for their waste carrier licence number.
- 2 Check their waste carrier licence number or their company name by visiting the Clean Kent website: www.cleankent.com and following the link to the Environment Agency or call 0870 850 6506.
- 3 Please keep a note of all the information you receive from the waste removal service/tradesman and a receipt for any work done. If they're not registered don't use them. Inform Clean Kent of the rogue trader immediately by calling 0845 345 0210.

Don't forget if you see someone flytipping call the Clean Kent hotline on 0845 345 0210. All calls are confidential.

My body is my art

ARTISTS swapped blank canvas for bare skin to showcase their talents in a rather unusual way at the UK's first body painting festival.

Organiser Ann Eatwell said the event held at the The Farriers Arms pub in Mersham, near Ashford, was a fantastic success and allowed the art form to gain more exposure.

"Body painting is a respectable, family orientated, artistic approach to what is a relevant and serious art form for many diverse cultures. It is hoped the festival brought this to a wider audience.

"Many countries have festivals to enable artists to show their talents in this field. The Mersham festival incorporated face painting for both adults and children and offered workshops for many varieties of theatrical and creative skills for all ages," she said.

Key regeneration site hit by 'glitch'

By JAMIE MCGINNES

jamie.mcginnes@kosmedia.co.uk

MEDWAY'S £5 billion regeneration programme for the next 20 years has suffered a setback after a government inspector said part of the plan was "unsound".

The inspector was unhappy with proposals to build up to 5,000 homes on former MoD land at Chattenden, saying the area was better suited as a location for businesses.

Medway Council said it would now have to resubmit its plans and hold a further inquiry, causing delays and increasing the cost involved.

Cllr Rodney Chambers, leader of the council, reacted by saying he would not release more land for development.

He said: "We will not release any more greenfield land over and above what we have already identified and extensively consulted on.

"We are not prepared to let the people of Medway down by releasing further land and will keep our promise that we will never develop Capstone Valley.

"We will seek to speedily bring this to a conclusion by resubmitting our plans at the earliest date possible."

A statement put out by Medway Council on Thursday said the inspector appointed to examine its new planning framework had "halted" the process.

The framework sets Medway's planning policies until 2021.

But John Ryall, public relations manager for Medway Renaissance – the Medway Council body charged with building 16,000 homes and creating 20,000 jobs in the area said it had come as a shock.

"It was a bit of a surprise, especially at the last minute."

However, he said it had no bearing on other regeneration work being carried out.

"It's more of a glitch than a long-term problem," said Mr Weddell. "It's not a case of 'oh God, it's the end of the world'."

But he admitted that if the report was allowed to stand, it could ultimately mean fewer houses were built in Medway.

Work was not due to start on the Chattenden development for at least a year.

As well as thousands of homes, shops, businesses and infrastructure such as schools and doctors' surgeries would be built on the site.

Chatham, Gillingham, Strood and Rochester are all receiving a face-lift under Medway's £5bn regeneration plans.

Ben Stoneman, of the Government's Thames Gateway Delivery Unit, said: "Medway's role in contributing to the Thames Gateway programme will continue to progress, regardless of this decision.

"Many of these key developments are already taking shape, such as those at Chatham Maritime and at Rochester Riverside."

Work on Rochester Riverside is due to begin in the New Year.

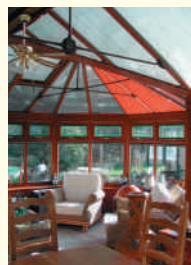

'We are not prepared to let the people of Medway down by releasing further greenfield land' over the next 20 years – said the statement had given far too gloomy an assessment of the inspector's report.

He told Kent on Sunday: "You could run away with the impression this has halted or paralysed Medway Council's regeneration programme. That's simply not the case."

Brian Weddell, head of Medway Renaissance, insisted that the inspector's decision was not a setback, even though he

Education chief has high hopes for Caldecott Foundation pupils to pass GCSEs

By JENNA PUDELEK

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

COVERED only by supermarket carrier bags with holes cut out for his arms and legs, a six-year-old boy is rescued from his desperately impoverished home by social services.

David (not his real name) was taken to a charity in Kent where staff said the first thing he did was run to a bin to see if there were any food scraps among the rubbish.

The youngster would eat so much at mealtimes that it made him sick – but where David came from he never knew if, or when, his next meal would turn up.

Constant beatings meant he did not feel pain, so when he got a toothache he put up with it for weeks never saying a word.

His carers only discovered the infection when they became increasingly worried about his irritability and listlessness and took him to the dentist.

The emotionally injured and ill-treated child would never wear a coat or gloves even in the most bitterly cold weather – running into the garden wearing only shorts and a shirt. This is all you need if you've been cold all your life.

The Caldecott Foundation provides a home, care and education for some of the most severely abused and neglected children, like David, in the country.

Based in Smeeth near Ashford, it is currently home to around 50 children and young people aged between five and 16 who have suffered the most horrific and unimaginable starts in life.

Communicate

Until now, not many people have expected these children to perform well at school, for understandable reasons, however a new head of education has set out ambitious plans to give them not just a future but a successful future.

Sharon McDermott said this school year she wants every child to gain one or two GCSEs, something never achieved before.

Ms McDermott is able to communicate with the children on their level and without revealing details, she said: "My background is not dissimilar to these kids."

"But a teacher once told me if I wanted to be miserable I could or I could get off my backside and do something. And eventually I did."

Ms McDermott, who lives in Sheerness with her 15-year-old son, left the north of England to study educational psychology and philosophy at the University of Kent in Canterbury before doing a teacher training course at Christ Church University.

She spent 13 years with the Integrated Services Programme, which provides schooling for fostered children, many of whom had similar educational and behavioural challenges as Caldecott pupils. All her students left with GCSEs and all went onto college.

Explaining her teaching philosophy, she said: "All of these students are still here and are still surviving. This gives them an edge – if they can survive that we can push them in the right direction and they can achieve anything. They can prove everybody wrong."

"I believe in empowering the children and young people to take advantage of what is available to them, to have good, strong opinions and be able to voice them."

The charity's work is geared toward getting the children back into mainstream schools and living either with foster parents or, if they are older, in the charity's halfway houses in Ashford as soon as they are able.

But after the one-to-one teaching and around the clock support and care offered at Caldecott, in comforting surroundings that have benefited from a huge refurbishment after a £8million fundraising drive, how do the children cope with the environment of a huge comprehensive school?

The pupils are moved through a specially adapted education system beginning in a 'nurture' stage where they are given support to build self-esteem and confidence in a classroom divided into areas including a homely corner with cushions and a kitchen.

They pass through three other stages

DEDICATION: Sharon McDermott at The Caldecott Foundation (above); and one of the teachers with pupils at the school in Smeeth eventually reaching 'secondary' level which is formally timetabled with subjects taught in different classrooms.

Ms McDermott said: "It is so they are in a position to cope with bigger groups, a more demanding curriculum and with transitions; empowering the children to understand their triggers, what worries them and how to ask for support."

"Once the students can identify their triggers they can take responsibility for feelings and emotions so they manage them."

She has big plans for the school and wants to open a special unit for young people who still need support after leaving the school.

"With the 16 to 19-year-olds curriculum, I think there is potential for students who cannot manage college."

"Most provision for children with emotional, social and behavioural difficulties does not provide that. With further education geared to working with children with special needs I think sometimes the smaller environment works. I am going to push for that," she said.

Medieval text to go online

ARCHIVISTS in Medway are celebrating after an iconic 12th century legal work in their care won a high profile competition.

The Textus Roffensis was written between 1123-1124 and contains the earliest record of the English language; English laws and the coronation oath of Henry I, which influenced the barons who drafted the Magna Carta.

On Tuesday, the archivists were announced the winners of the British Library competition in London to uncover national treasures that are hidden in the country's libraries and archives.

The two distinct books are owned by Rochester Cathedral and kept in the Medway Archives and Local Studies Centre in the Civic Centre, Strood.

The first part contains one of the most important of all surviving collections of Anglo-Saxon laws, from the conversion of King Aethelberht of Kent to the coronation charter of King Henry I of 1100.

The second part is the oldest and most precious of the cathedral registers. It can best be described as a memorandum book, created for ease of reference and security, and compiled in part from individual or single sheet original documents.

Medway beat off stiff competition from 82 entries, having dazzled the judges with the historic 235-page volume of work.

The prize means Medway Archives and Local Studies Centre will be able to digitise this important piece of work with page-turning software.

Medway Council's Cllr Howard Doe said: "This is wonderful news and everyone from Medway Archives and Local Studies Centre and Rochester Cathedral should feel incredibly proud of this accolade.

"This is a great opportunity to bring this historically important document to life with new technology and share it with a wider audience, as well as putting Medway on the map."

The council's archives and local studies officer April Lambourne, who was at the ceremony, added: "We were amazed when we were announced as the winners. This is an amazingly important document. We were competing against a diverse collection, but are delighted to have won."

When the voice of the century came to the castle

TOWERING TALENT: The great man on stage at Leeds Castle (main pic), and the crowds enjoying the show (inset)

By JAMIE MCGINNES

jamie.mcginnes@kosmedia.co.uk

LUCIANO Pavarotti was larger than life in many ways than one.

The opera singer, who died at the age of 71 on Thursday, left a memorable impression on all that he met.

The Italian tenor played two concerts at Leeds Castle and staff this week recalled the great man.

For his second performance at the castle on July 17, 2004, he slept in a 17th century Spanish four-poster bed, which was strengthened to take his huge frame.

A shower had been installed especially for him for his previous concert on August 29, 1993.

On both visits, he reserved the room next door complete with a double fridge and running buffet for a card game that went on late into the night.

Lianne Streek, marketing executive for Leeds Castle, had just started work at the castle when the first concert took place.

"It was the first major celebrity concert held at Leeds Castle at the very start of a golden age of open-air concerts," she said.

The castle had an Italian chef at the time, who hit it off with Pavarotti from the outset.

"Although the opera singer brought his own dietician, he was more than happy to enjoy the Italian specialities our chef prepared for him," she added.

"After the concert, he spent the evening in castle, dining with his entourage and playing cards with four Italian childhood friends who accompanied the opera singer on all his tours."

Simeon Rosset worked as Pavarotti's personal butler during his second stay.

He said: "Even though he was such a superstar I was touched by his warmth and generosity."

"As I couldn't get down to the concert site, he invited me out to his Hamburg concert with a friend. We enjoyed front row seats - reserved for family and friends - and tickets to the VIP after party where we sat on the top table with Pavarotti himself. It was the best tip I've ever had!"

Old Testament truths of today

Themes of terrorism and oppression in Exodus

ON FIRE: The sculptor Antony Gormley created The Waste Man for the film. Film-makers said it represented the burning bush, from which Moses received a message from God

UNWANTED members of society – asylum seekers and economic refugees, the unemployed, sexual deviants, drug addicts, petty criminals and ethnic minorities – are forced to live in Dreamland by a fascist leader called Pharaoh.

This is the backdrop for acclaimed filmmaker Penny Woolcock's epic inspired by the Old Testament Book of Exodus – set in contemporary Margate.

Exodus, which was premiered at the Venice Film Festival this week and is up for an award in the new cinema trends category, was made almost entirely in the Thanet coastal town and stars a host of local people cast in main roles and as extras.

Tensions

The film explores themes of identity, migration and great movements of people and the writer and director chose its setting and cast to expose some very real tensions.

Ms Woolcock said: "Asylum seekers who have fled war-torn areas across the world – from the Congo to Iraq – are bitterly resented by some local residents who feel marginalised and neglected."

"The emotional truths of the Old Testament – where the oppressed are brutalised and become brutal, where terrible injustice leads to horrific acts of terrorism – are as vital today as they were in biblical times."

By JENNA PUDELEK

RADA-trained actor Daniel Percival is Moses, who leads a guerrilla war to liberate the inhabitants of Dreamland, a shanty town built on the site of an old funfair.

The 27-year-old spoke to Kent on Sunday from Venice and told how he got involved in the unusual project.

He said: "I was about 10 minutes out of drama school when I came to meet Penny at the Artangel [the production company] offices and we started off with reading the script and discussing it."

He added: "It's not often you get asked to play Moses."

The actor, whose previous work includes the ITV drama Vital Signs, said having an Israeli mother meant politics, particularly those of the Middle East, had been part of dinner table discussions since he could remember.

He was eager to embrace the left-leaning subject matter and strong social conscience associated with Woolcock's work, including her films documenting life on Britain's toughest housing estates.

"We started thinking about what makes Moses a leader? How does that affect a person who starts off peaceful with the argument of no guns and no violence but literally by the end it is any means necessary?" he said of his character's inner struggles.

Talking animatedly about his time in Margate, he said: "It is a very difficult place, I have never been to an environment like that with such awful drug problems – you see it everywhere. There are so many tensions because of the immigration centre and a lot of these tensions are reflected in the film."

"I'm never going to experience a set like that again and deal with issues like those. People were having arguments, using racial slurs, but we were working together and became a really strong community."

He said filming brought together professionals and non-actors into a tight-knit group, and the loss of a popular cast member to a drug overdose affected them all.

"He had a terrible drug problem and died two months ago – it was weird watching the film. He was on set every day, people loved him and he would just come to help out," he said.

Dreamer

Anthony Johnson, a singer who lives in Ramsgate, played Aaron, Moses' brother, in the film.

Asked how Thanet's social problems were explored in the film, he said: "It highlights a lot of things, like the prejudices people feel. The Pharaoh doesn't like anyone."

"Because there are a lot of people migrating and moving to Kent it highlights a lot of the truths in real life."

Speaking about his character, he said: "Aaron is a bit like one of the lads, he's very high up in the food chain in the ghetto. I believe he is the bridge between Moses and the Dreamers. I think he is as much of a saviour as Moses."

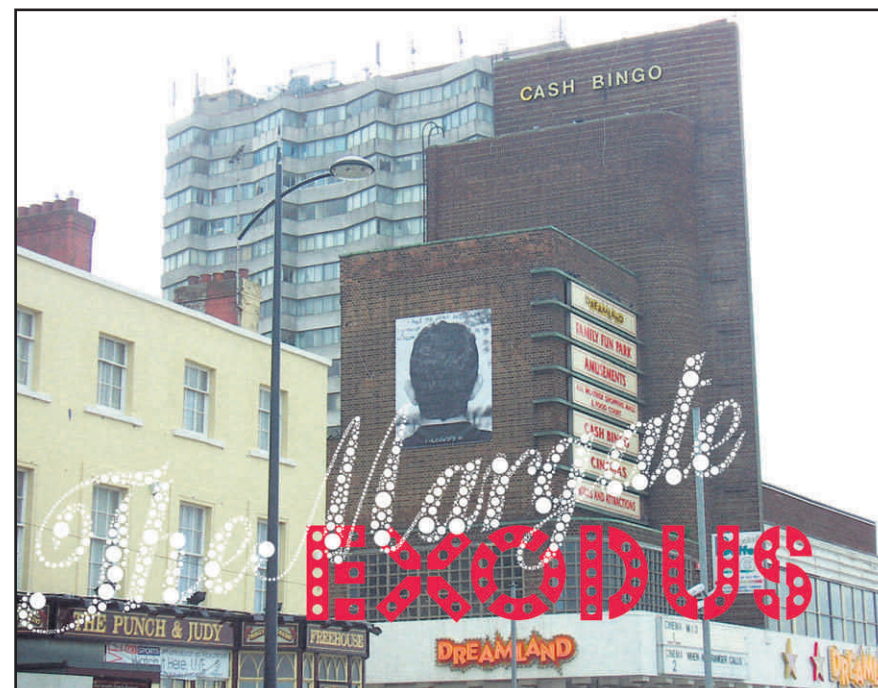

The 22-year-old was spotted by one of the film's scouts while making his experimental mix of drum and bass, grime and hip hop in a Ramsgate music studio.

He added: "I cannot wait for my next job I am really excited. I just did a photo shoot and one of the guys said I've got a brilliant face."

The film has been entered in the festival's Orizzonti section, which aimed to provide an overview of trends in cinema, in particular the merging of fiction and documentary.

The film will be shown in the UK as part of the London Film Festival on October 19 and can be seen on Channel 4, which funded the project, in late autumn.

Bring it on home: Led Zep reform for new gigs

ON THE ROAD AGAIN: John Bonham (deceased), Robert Plant, Jimmy Page and John Paul Jones

LED Zeppelin are sensationally reforming and playing a comeback concert in London this autumn.

The heavy metal pioneers, who include Kent-born musician John Paul Jones, broke up nearly 30 years ago.

But speculation is rife that they are about to announce a new live appearance to coincide with the release of a 24-track greatest hits album, Mothership, on November 11.

Sources said that the rockers, best known for songs like Whole Lotta Love, Bring It On Home, Kashmir and Stairway To Heaven, are in talks to perform at the O2 arena in Greenwich.

However, fans have been warned not to buy tickets that are currently being advertised for the gig – as it has not yet been confirmed.

Rock promoter Harvey Goldsmith said he is worried people could be “fleeced” – but did not deny the concert was happening.

In a statement, the rock promoter said: “There have been at least four events advertised, which I suspect either don’t exist or where no tickets are on sale or indeed dates finalised.”

He added that he had reported the ticket agency, Premier Entertainments, to the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

By JAMIE MCGINNES

jamie.mcginnes@kosmedia.co.uk

The agency said it was not accepting bookings for the concert until details were announced, but merely taking details of interested customers.

Premier Entertainments is also selling tickets for shows by the Spice Girls, Cream and Bruce Springsteen.

Hotel and concert packages to see Led Zeppelin are priced at a minimum of £269.

Mr Goldsmith added: “There are no packages or tickets for some of the events advertised at all, nor do some of the events even exist.

Vomit

“We are concerned that the public will be fleeced. The bottom line is that unless official adverts have appeared for concerts, tickets are not on sale. Do not buy from unauthorised sources.”

It is being speculated that original drummer John Bonham’s son Jason would replace him on drums. The band split following Bonham’s death in 1980. He died at the age of 32 after choking on his own vomit following a heavy drinking session.

The three surviving members are John Paul Jones, who was born in Sidcup, Robert Plant and Jimmy Page.

After Bonham’s death, the three briefly reunited at the Live Aid concert in Philadelphia in 1985 for a set featuring drummers Tony Thompson and Phil Collins.

However, they banned footage from the performance from ever being released because they said it was not up to their usual standards.

They also got together to perform at Atlantic Records’ 40th birthday celebrations in 1988.

John Paul Jones, who formally studied music at boarding school in Kent, played the bass, keyboard and mandolin for Led Zeppelin.

After the break-up of the band, he has had a successful career as a solo musician and producer.

GET OUT OF JAIL FREE?

You can no longer shift the blame for your present or future health problems away from you and simply rely on the medical establishment anymore.

Many people blame "bad genes" and their parents for their poor health.

Let's get something straight, your current level of health is due to the good or bad decisions you have made in the past.

You have an incredible, creative, healing power that exists within your cells. Many people, including medical doctors try to blame a person's poor health on BAD GENES. This is rubbish!

The reason for this crazy way of thinking and why so many people accept it is because they can now blame someone else for their poor state of health and well-being...It is the "Get out of jail free" way of thinking without having to take responsibility for oneself.

Genes are a tendency, not a death sentence. To say that a "gene" causes obesity, depression, alcoholism, or chocolate addiction is INSANE. Genetics is an amazing subject, one that we don't even truly understand 5% of yet. And as we learn more, we discover that there is even more mystery to it.

You do have a genetic make-up from your parents and their parents, but to say you will suffer with the same dis-ease or disease due to your genes is not necessarily correct. Doctor Bruce Lipton, a former medical school professor and research scientist, points out that "single gene disorders affect less than 2% of the population"! That means 98% of us are born with the ability to live outrageously healthy and happy lives.

Research has demonstrated that 80% of all chronic disease in society is due to our lifestyle choices. In simple terms, if you decide to have a poor diet, don't exercise regularly or drink plenty of clean water, and do not maintain regular spinal check-ups, you are much less likely to enjoy a healthy life for very long compared to someone who commits to WELLNESS habits like these.

Someone once said, "Forget your health and it will go away".

You health is not in your genes, but your choices. Some people commit more to a routine of cleaning their car or gardening than looking after their health. If you don't want to commit to a lifetime of wellness, that is your choice. But, if you want to guarantee a greater chance of fulfilling your potential, maximising your learning at school, your earning potential at work, your speed and endurance on the sporting field and continue to have an active and healthy retirement, you need to look at your health choices now.

Who do you seek advice from to get started, or even stay on track and continually improve with your health? It is probably not your old doctor, because he is trained in sickness. If you want to know more about wellness and the amazing benefits it can have for you and your family, book an appointment with your new wellness doctor who specialises in assisting you with continued growth, development and health for the future.

Auction for Palmer may fetch £30,000

AN ARTIST'S VISION: Samuel Palmer's painting, The Bright Cloud, will be going to auction on September 18

A WATERCOLOUR by Samuel Palmer showing the Kent countryside is expected to be sold for up to £30,000 at auction.

Palmer (1805-1881), a follower of William Blake, was one of the leading lights of the golden age of British landscape painting.

The watercolour was painted while the artist was living in Shoreham, in west Kent.

Palmer lived in the Shoreham area from 1826-1835, buying a run-down cottage apparently nicknamed Rat Abbey. During that time he set about producing some of the finest watercolours in British history.

The painting, to be sold by Bonhams on September 18, is a study for The Bright Cloud, a large oil and tempera work on a mahogany panel, which hangs in the City of Manchester Art Galleries.

The richly intimate depiction of the Kent countryside was painted in 1832-3 and is typical of his style at this time.

Marry

In 1828, Palmer moved into Waterhouse, a Queen Anne mansion by the River Darent, where he lived for the rest of his time in Shoreham. It was here that Palmer met and fell in love with the 14-year-old Hannah Linnell, who he would go on to marry and from whom this painting originally descends.

A vast amount of Palmer's Shoreham work was lost in 1909 when his son Herbert Palmer decided to burn it. The destruction was supposed to have lasted for days and included original works, as well as sketchbooks.

The artist's achievements were rediscovered when the Victoria and Albert Museum curated an exhibition of his work in 1926 entitled Drawings, Etchings and Woodcuts made by Samuel Palmer and other Disciples of William Blake.

Records show that this particular painting formed part of that exhibition.

Eat and drink your way through festival

THE county's best food and drink will be showcased at a new event being staged in Canterbury next month.

Produced in Kent, the champion of local produce from the county, is organising The Kent Food and Drink Festival.

More than 30 stallholders will attend the two-day event, which takes place in the Dane John Gardens on October 13 and 14, backed by Canterbury City Council and The ABode Hotel.

Cookery demonstrations, lectures, tutored wine and beer tastings, as well as advice on matching food and drink will also be available to visitors.

Richard Long, chairman of Produced in Kent, said: "Kent already has a glorious reputation for its food and drink and one of the aims of this event is to further spread that message."

"We are fortunate to have a wide range of excellent food and drink producers within Kent and we want to let people know what's available."

Mr Long added: "People need to know why we are the Garden of England and we want people to make Kent a must-see destination to try our outstanding local produce. Making a visit to Kent is a great chance to have a fantastic food and drink experience."

The festival, which opens at 10am on both days, will coincide with the start of the Canterbury Arts Festival – one of the largest cultural events in England.

On the Saturday, the Canterbury Arts Festival Community Parade will finish at the Dane John Gardens with a light and firework show and the food festival will stay open until 9pm.

The festival finishes at 4pm on the Sunday.

During the weekend, selected restaurants and pubs in Canterbury will offer a special menu celebrating local produce. A full festival programme will be available to the public from the end of this month.

The Taste of Kent Awards will also be launched at the festival allowing the public a chance to see, taste and nominate their favourite producers.

For more information visit www.producedinkent.co.uk or call 01732 853170.

Police appeal for drug help

SEVENTEEN people have been arrested in an anti-drugs operation.

Nearly 150 officers took part in the raids at 21 addresses in Dover, the main port of entry to the UK.

Police said drugs and paraphernalia plus stolen items were recovered in the raids on Tuesday morning.

Chief Superintendent Steve Harris appealed to the public to contact the police if they had information on drug dealers.

He said: "Please come forward and give us the information that you have, help us fill in the intelligence picture that will make your area a safer place to live for everybody who lives there, works there and goes to play there."

Volunteer call

VOLUNTEER drivers are being sought in Thanet.

Owners of four-door vehicles are needed to take people to hospitals, day centres or doctor appointments.

The Thanet Volunteer Bureau said volunteers must be honest, patient and reliable – and must have a sense of humour.

Finally, after 13 years, we get fast trains like France

THE TRAIN NOW ARRIVING: Eurostar set a record journey time from Paris to London

BRITAIN has finally unveiled its high-speed domestic rail service – more than a decade after the French.

Eurostar, the high-speed train operator that links the UK with the Continent, ran its inaugural train over Britain's new 186mph line on Tuesday, arriving at St Pancras International, its new London terminal.

The French service was launched in 1994, ready for the opening of the Channel Tunnel.

Eurostar said the train from Gare du Nord station in Paris set a new record journey time, covering the 306 mile distance to St Pancras International in two hours and three minutes.

During its journey, the train travelled at

By PETER BOYES

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

speeds of up to 200mph.

The UK's first high-speed line runs for 68 miles from the Channel Tunnel near Folkestone to St Pancras International in central London.

It passes through Ashford International and Eurostar's new station at Ebbsfleet International in Kent, before crossing under the River Thames and approaching the capital in tunnels under East London.

Richard Brown, chief executive of Eurostar, said: "Eurostar has proved that our 186 mph trains are by far the quickest way of travelling between France and Britain. Paris and London have joined the 'two-hour club' and our great cities are now even closer together.

"The record-breaking run shows that High Speed 1 unleashes Eurostar's true capability to carry millions of travellers conveniently, comfortably and quickly between Britain and the continent."

Eurostar's decision to cut services from Ashford has attracted widespread condemnation, from thousands of members of the public, county councils and cross-party MPs.

A listener to Radio 4's Today programme said that the residents of Kent had suffered the most during the building of the cross-Channel rail tracks and yet were losing out because of the axing of many of Ashford's services to Europe.

Eurostar will launch services from St Pancras International on November 14.

Good reviews for Jagger junior

JAMES Jagger, son of Sir Mick and Jerry Hall, has received rave reviews for his professional stage debut.

The 22-year-old appears in a double-bill by American dramatist James McLure called Lonestar and Private Wars written in 1979 focusing on the effects of the Vietnam War.

The Telegraph's theatre critic said Jagger "proves a highly competent and indeed charismatic actor of whom Mick and Jerry can be proud".

The Guardian said: "Tall as his ma and rubbery-lipped as his pa, Jagger Junior acquits himself decently and doesn't let the side down."

Lonestar is about a Vietnam veteran and his slow-witted Ray and events in Texas. The second play is set in a military hospital.

Ex-Eastender Shane Richie also appears in the play at the Kings Head Theatre in Upper Street.

Improving travelling in Kent

Your one-stop guide to information and advice on travelling

Making Kent a better place to live

A lot of people associate Kent Highway Services' with just fixing roads, pavements and streetlights but did you know that we also work closely with Kent's planners and developers to make the county a better place to live?

Our Development Planning Engineers are at the forefront of a national move to help developers and planners create better places for people to live. They don't just consider how cars and pedestrians can move around; they look at how the public spaces between buildings can be used as places for people to meet and for children to play.

There are lots of things to think about when a new development is being planned:

- Is the road safe, especially for pedestrians, cyclists and children?
- Can you reach local facilities without using a car?
- If you have a car, can you park it where you want to?
- Are the materials used to build the roads attractive and hard wearing?

- Is your road a space for the community, or just a road?

We try to imagine what it will be like to live in these new places, but there's nobody better than the residents to tell us whether we've got it right. So, if you live in a fairly new road don't be surprised to see a KHS residents' survey drop through your door.

Kent Highway Services is proud of its involvement with well-regarded development schemes but we want to do even better by listening to the people who live on our new roads.

So, if you receive a survey, please complete it and tell us about the good, the bad and the ugly, so we can continue to help our development partners create the right places for you.

Extra money for pavement repairs

At Kent Highway Services we don't just look after most of the roads in Kent; we look after most of the pavements too. We understand how important it is to maintain the quality of footways, so we're already spending £3.5 million this year on everyday repairs and resurfacing pavements where necessary.

Kent Highway Services prioritises footway resurfacing to areas of high use, or approaches to schools, hospitals and shopping areas but this sometimes means that lower priority areas have to wait for the attention they need.

The good news is that Kent Highway Services has just received more funding, so we can now spend an extra £600,000 on improving pavements on some of our urban estates, to make walking in Kent safer and more enjoyable for everyone.

If you want to report a pavement that needs attention, please contact Kent Highway Services on 08458 247 800. Further information about our services is available on our website: www.kent.gov.uk/highways

Get out and about with Kent Public Transport Map

If you're a regular user of public transport, you'll already know which services you need but if you're not, or you're planning an unfamiliar journey, Kent County Council can help. We've just published the latest Kent Public Transport Map.

The map is also available online and can be found on our website at:

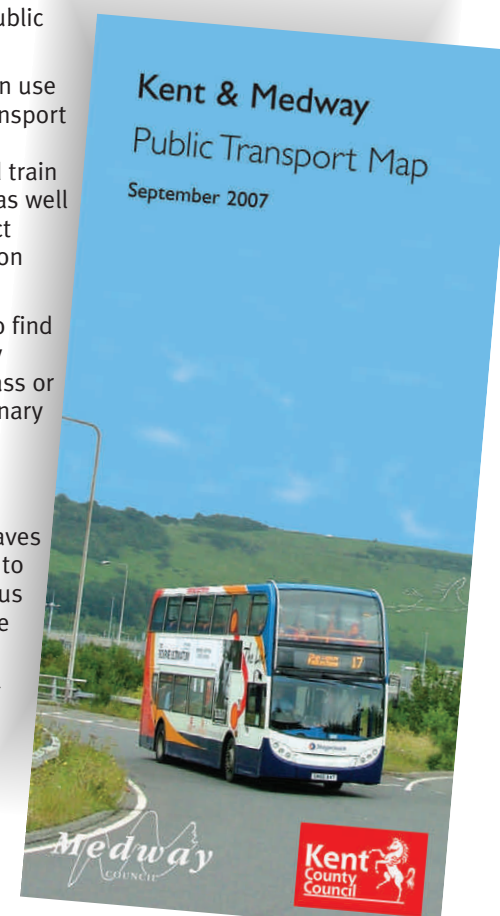

www.kent.gov.uk/publictransport

The map shows how you can use Kent's network of public transport to travel across the county. It lists the principal bus and train services operating in Kent, as well as frequency guides, contact details for further information and timetables.

You can also use the map to find out where you can get to by using your Kent Freedom Pass or Kent Countywide concessionary fares pass.

Another new feature of this year's map is the PlusBus listings - the scheme that saves you money by allowing you to buy a combined train and bus ticket. The map shows those rail stations where PlusBus tickets can be used on local buses in the towns.

Copies of the map are available countywide at railway stations, bus stations, travel offices, libraries and tourist information centres.

MEP's campaign against use of child soldiers

'These children are subject to extreme cruelty'

NOT A TOY: The United Nations estimates 250,000 children were involved in armed conflict last year

AN MEP who represents Kent has launched a campaign against the use of child soldiers, writes Peter Boyes.

Liberal Democrat Sharon Bowles has signed the European Parliament's first ever written declaration on the subject.

The UN estimates that more than 250,000 children were actively involved in armed conflict across the world last year.

Ms Bowles said: "This cannot be allowed to continue. These children are totally stripped of any childhood, are subject to extreme cruelty and the brutalities of war."

"Some are as young as nine years old and are often placed on the front line of battle. In some cases they are forcibly abducted, or induced to fight by violent means by armed government forces."

Bolder

"International pressure is needed to make sure that the use of child soldiers is eliminated once and for all."

If her campaign succeeds, the European Parliament would in future be able to put pressure on national governments and international organisations like the UN to take bolder steps to eliminate the use of children in war.

International law exists but is not always adhered to. The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989) stated: "State parties shall take all feasible measures that persons who have not attained the age of 15 years do not take a direct part in hostilities."

In 2007, child soldiers are most widely used in Africa, in countries including the Democratic Republic of Congo, Rwanda, Somalia and Sudan. The rebel war in Sierra Leone – one of Africa's worst – was characterised by the use of child combatants.

They have also been used in Afghanistan, Burma, India, Indonesia and Laos and, closer to home, in the Balkans and Chechnya.

Evidence exists of children being drugged and forced to take part in killings – sometimes of their own parents. They become desensitised and look to army leaders as surrogate parents.

A disturbing new trend has seen the increasing use of girls as soldiers. They are also subject to sexual exploitation.

Post conflict, children who were soldiers often experience lasting psychological trauma and social exclusion as well as physical damage.

Ms Bowles' written declaration runs until December 3 and requires 393 signatures to be adopted.

The campaign is being supported by the charities War Child and Coalition to Stop the Use of Child Soldiers.

Work and play can pay

BOSSES and employees have been told that not only working together but also playing together will boost productivity and even make everyone a little richer.

A survey for The National Lottery found 79 per cent believe activity that binds people together outside work gives the business a head start over rivals.

Across the South East, it adds up to £25 million.

Researchers found taking part in non-work activity with colleagues gives everyone a lift, and can lead to a bigger wage packet because the employer is doing better by around 14 per cent on average.

Run activities for children and young people?

Promote your services FREE!

If you run activity clubs for children and young people in Kent the Kent Children's Information Service needs to hear from you.

Every day we take calls from parents seeking information and advice about childcare and early education.

Increasingly parents are looking for details of less formal activity clubs such as breakfast and after school clubs, parent and toddler groups, sports and youth clubs, scouts, brownies, dance and drama clubs.

By agreeing to put details of your group together with a contact name and telephone number on our database we can pass this valuable information on to parents at no cost to you whatsoever. So what are you waiting for?

FEARS that gas cylinders could explode during a fire at a builder's yard in Sittingbourne forced three properties to be evacuated.

The blaze started at around 5.30pm on Monday and firefighters worked through the night to control it.

It is believed the fire started in a storage shed at the back of a private property on Grovehurst Road.

Police cordoned off the area with road closures.

Why transplant charity requires fresher organs

STUDENTS beginning university are being urged to sign up to become organ donors.

The UK Transplant charity will visit fresher fairs at university campuses around the country to highlight the need for more people to join the NHS Organ Donor Register.

There are more than 14.6 million on the register nationwide.

However, a charity spokeswoman said: "There is still a desperate shortage of donated organs for transplant in the country.

"More than 9,000 people need a transplant and although more than 3,000 transplant operations took place last year, around 400 people died while waiting.

"This is why UK Transplant is asking all students to think about signing up to the register and talking about their wishes with their families; it really is a life-saving decision."

A celebration of Jewish heritage

THE Kent home of the first Jewish Lord Mayor of London opens to the public today.

A Heritage Open Day will be held at Canterbury Christ Church University's Salomons Campus in Tunbridge Wells.

Visitors will have free access to the estate and will be able to tour the Victorian house that belonged to three generations of the family.

The house was the first in England to use electricity for general domestic purposes and to have purpose built car garages.

Sir David Salomons was the first Jew to speak in the House of Commons and was an equal rights campaigner for people of all faiths. He became mayor in 1855.

His nephew, Sir David Lionel Salomons, who also lived in the house, was a keen scientist, engineer and pioneer of road transport.

Vera Salomons, his last surviving child, left the estate to Kent County Council in 1936 for it to be used as a public institution.

Now part of the university, it is divided into a number of faculties and departments.

The house will be open from 10am to 4pm.

Tackling alcoholism

A SUMMER school at the University of Kent is being run for professionals who work with alcoholics.

Key topics include UK alcohol policy and drinking patterns, measuring treatment outcomes, alcohol and mental health, self-help approaches, understanding behaviour change, ambivalence, how to engage clients, and psychosocial and family based interventions.

The school runs from Monday until Friday and will be attended by alcohol and drug specialists, criminal justice and housing workers, and health and social care professionals.

Sandra on being a pucker for love

Novelist tells of 'flustered' first kiss at pony club ball

By PETER BOYES

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

SANDRA Howard, the wife of politician Michael, has spoken of her first kiss as a teenage girl.

The writer, who lives with her MP husband at Lympe, near Hythe, revealed her experience after scientists claimed that women have learned to use kissing as an evolutionary tool to find the right father for their children.

Mrs Howard, 66, said: "My first kiss – or at least the first kiss I can remember – was when I was 13 and being escorted to a pony club ball.

"There I was, in a darkish passage off the hall where the dance was being held, and too covered in embarrassment to enjoy the rather flustered kiss.

"It certainly had no deep significance or gave any lasting, lingering pointers to the future.

"But then the poor boy had got off to a rotten start. The whole evening had been an acute embarrassment.

"The trouble was his name was Simon Watt. During the evening, friends' fathers, fierce and bristly looking, had come up and said: 'What's your name boy?' 'Watt,' my helpless escort had answered. They kept asking: 'I said what's your name?' 'Watt, Sir,' he replied endlessly.

Introduction

"I couldn't wait to get home. It wasn't a perfect introduction to kissing, but it didn't put me off for life."

Mrs Howard went on to become one of the leading models of the 1960s as Sandra Paul.

She was married three times before meeting Michael Howard, then a young barrister and aspiring politician who would become her fourth husband.

He wooed her by sending her a copy of F Scott Fitzgerald's classic novel, Tender is the Night.

Mrs Howard, a mother of three, has her second novel, Ursula's Ghost, published soon.

Kent is best for London web service

Internet group is making plans for major expansion

By JENNA PUDELEK

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

AN EXPANDING internet company that provides the latest information on going out in London has revealed the secret of its success – being based in Kent.

View London, a website providing news and listings for cinemas, pubs, bars, clubs and restaurants in the capital, has grown from a team of only three people to 20 in the past six years.

The company, which has a £1.5m turnover, now plans to expand its service to cover other cities.

The owners, 2View Group, will launch websites for all the major cultural hubs in the UK, from their base in Ashford, meaning the company is currently looking to employ at least 30 more people.

The London website has 1.5 million unique users per month and this year made a profit for the first time since its creation.

Managing director and co-founder Josh De Haan told KOS Media why he thinks the county is the best base for new businesses.

Profit

He said: "I am 100 per cent sure that our profit was because of location, more than most other things, and a great team."

"Being based in Kent offers us as a business more space to rent so we can fill more desks. It is exciting for this part of Kent because we are looking to double or triple our employees. We should really be based in London and we are not."

However, he added: "One drawback is the 'brain drain' – if you are going to be an online marketing expert it is better to be in London. But we hope that one day more and more people will come back."

Mr De Haan said it was cheaper and more effective to run the business from Ashford.

"We love being based where we are. On a personal level, I get to live in the countryside and it takes me 10 minutes to get to work. I can be by the sea in 10 minutes and in London in an hour. The high speed rail link will make it even easier," he said.

The company's growing success has proved its critics wrong, said Mr De Haan, whose father Roger is the former owner of Saga.

"A lot of people were saying you cannot do what you are doing but what we have done so far has proved that you do not have to be in the product city," he added.

"With Kent it has been a combination of things – more skilled workers are moving back because housing is more affordable down here and the quality of life is much better down here."

He said Brighton and then Manchester would soon get View sites.

Brighton was chosen first because of its SUCCESS STORY: Managing director and co-founder, Josh De Haan, top, and above, the company's logo size; there are 12,000 venues listed on the London website and only 450 for the East Sussex town.

Mr De Haan said: "It has been very difficult trying to come up with a list. We decided Brighton then Manchester as it is the biggest cultural hub outside London and then we will pick up every city by population."

Competition

"To get London to work has taken a year or two more than we expected. When we started it was a funny time with the dot com bomb about four years ago."

He said the Time Out and This is London, the Evening Standard's online offering, websites are the company's main competition.

But he revealed View London has bigger user numbers than This is London and believed as an independent website it was in a unique position for continued success.

The new Brighton website will be online by the end of the year and other sites will be unveiled in early 2008.

Leaflets 'inciting racial hatred' against gypsies

'RACIST' leaflets objecting to a new gypsy encampment are being investigated by Kent Police.

The leaflets were distributed in Swanley and relate to a planning application to change the use of land to allow two mobile homes and two touring caravans to be put on the site in Swan Lane.

Police said the planning application was made by a Hextable resident who is a member of the gypsy traveller community.

According to police, the leaflets, which started appearing around April, urge people to object to the planning application "in a way that can be perceived as encouraging racial hatred".

Inspector Dominic Kilbride said a complaint had been made about their content.

He added: "The content of the leaflets is unacceptable because they are linking criminality and disorder to an identifiable group of people, therefore they are prejudicial and this is no basis for an appeal against a planning application. Gypsies have been defined as a racial group by the Race Relations Act 1976 and these leaflets are, in my view, inciting racial hatred, this is supported by the way they are distributed in an anonymous and underhand way."

Boys found guilty of killing father

FIVE boys were found guilty of killing a father-of-two who had a heart attack after they pelted him with sticks and stones.

Ernest Norton, 67, had been playing cricket with his teenage son in Erith in February 2006 when he was attacked, the Old Bailey heard.

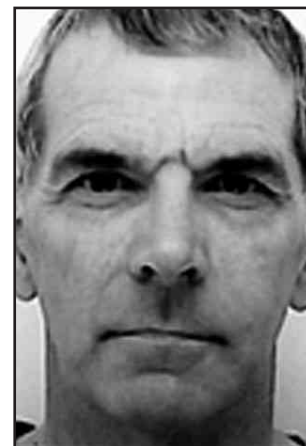

As many as 20 youths shouted abuse before throwing missiles at Mr Norton outside Erith Leisure Centre.

Mr Norton's 17-year-old son

James told the court: "We were just keeping ourselves to ourselves. It just seemed they wanted to pick on someone."

The boys, now aged between 12 and 14, were found guilty at the Old Bailey of manslaughter and violent disorder. They will be sentenced on October 19.

David Fisher QC, prosecuting, told the jury: "This was a completely unnecessary, pointless and random attack."

HEART ATTACK: Ernest Norton died after being pelted with sticks and stones

FIREFIGHTERS rescued seven people from a blaze at a block of flats in Gravesend.

The fire tore through the flats at St Patrick's Gardens in Valley Drive on Monday night. Fire crews saw residents hanging out of windows at the block of flats as they arrived to tackle to blaze.

An emergency control room operator helped a young mother trapped in the building – who made the 999 call – to stay calm. She and her two-year-old daughter were among those rescued. The cause of the fire is being investigated by police.

Food for thought

ACCLAIMED chef Michael Caines' Canterbury restaurant has celebrated its first anniversary following a year of "teething problems" and a slating from an award-winning critic.

A boutique hotel, champagne bar, traditional tavern and a restaurant make up ABode, which is one of a chain run by the top chef with businessman Andrew Brownsword.

Mr Caines invited KOS Media to a birthday lunch and talked about industry trends, sourcing local produce and plans for expansion.

The grade two-listed building was given a £5million refit before it was opened.

Sophisticated

Mr Caines said: "It had character but at the same time we wanted to bring a modern and sophisticated look – to give a timeless look and feel."

"It has been a first year full of challenges and we have worked hard. But coming to Canterbury was the right decision, it is a great market and there is so much potential to be developed."

The chef, who was awarded two Michelin stars for his work at Gidleigh Park in Devon, mentioned the dreaded Jay Rayner review of the £60-a-head restaurant. The 2006 critic

Top chef looks back on a challenging first year establishing the restaurant at ABode, and his hopes for the future

ic of the year called the eatery "a shoddy over-priced little business" that placed style over substance.

Mr Caines said: "The main problem was staffing. It is a new market and very high end. But we have the right level of skill now and it is about training and development – we now have a better base to build on."

Working to find ways to be more environmentally friendly, cutting down on food miles and reducing the restaurant's carbon footprint were good ways to entice customers, he said.

The restaurant uses locally produced food where possible and chefs looked to cut down on wastage as much as possible.

Executive chef Mark Rossi served a main course of Kent pork featuring home made black pudding, pig's belly and cheek at the lunch on Wednesday.

ANNIVERSARY: It will take more than a bad Jay Rayner review to deter Michael Caines from making ABode a long-term success

Mr Caines wants to roll out his brand to between 10 and 15 more ABode hotels around the country to add to the existing three, with Chester and Manchester venues due to open next year.

"We don't have the same menus, the executive chefs use their own creative talents, which I want to nurture and develop," he said.

The chefs take Caines' signature dishes and interpret them in their own way, he said.

He added: "It is a business first and foremost and it is about bums on seats. We are trying to fit the right concept into the local market."

Remembering the great storm of '87

MEMORIES of the Great Storm will be rekindled next month – 20 years after it battered the region.

National Trust properties including Chartwell suffered from the high winds of the night of October 15-16, 1987.

Fortunately much of the garden of Sir Winston Churchill's former home was sheltered during the storm, thanks to its position in a valley, but the surrounding woodlands were badly damaged.

Former head gardener Jon Simons was at Chartwell when the storm hit.

He said: "Because the staff accommodation is sheltered we didn't realise what was happening until dawn on Friday."

"Then we saw benches floating in the lake and that the orchard had been flattened."

It took two-and-a-half years to remedy the effects of the storm at Chartwell. Even now looking at the hills visitors can see how much of the woodland was lost, with the few trees that pre-date 1987 rising randomly above the others.

Village is sitting pretty after win

THE winners in the 2007 Calor Kent Village of the Year competition were announced at Lenham Community Centre on Monday.

Smarden was crowned overall winner and Wilmington was runner-up. Iwade was very highly commended, while Wye and Preston were both commended.

Smarden will now go forward to represent the county in the national heat of the contest.

Miranda Hayes, competition organiser on behalf of Action with Communities in Rural Kent, said: "We wish Smarden the best of luck."

"They are an outstanding community and did exceptionally well in the county competition. We are sure this success can be replicated at national level."

COMMENT

EU row goes on

FOR what seems like the first time in ages, a clear divide is opening between Labour and the Conservatives over a political issue.

That is, the EU reform treaty and whether or not there should be a referendum.

Gordon Brown has suggested there is no need for a public vote, as the treaty won't step over Britain's "red lines".

Loyal Labour Members of Parliament in Kent back his position in a poll by this newspaper.

But Tories say the treaty is almost identical to the controversial EU constitution that was thrown out two years ago. They fear it will cede more power to the European Parliament.

So we have an issue that has divided the two main political parties.

Opinion polls published by newspapers – albeit right-wing ones – state the public wants a referendum and the majority would say no to the treaty.

Some Labour MPs, though none in this county apparently, are now joining calls for a ballot. The pressure is growing. We will be watching closely.

Good luck to you

THIS week, we report on the Caldecott Foundation, a charity based very near to our newspaper and website offices.

Charity workers provide care, accommodation and education to some of the UK's most abused and neglected children.

Theirs is a very difficult job. But it is so important that these children, denied their right to a loving family, are given a chance to lead a normal, safe and fulfilling life.

We applaud the work of the foundation, and wish the children the best for the future. If you would like to donate to the charity, visit www.caldecottfoundation.co.uk.

OPINION:

Save the children of war

SHARON BOWLES MEP on the fight to stop the young being forced to bear arms

IT SEEMS hard to imagine a child as young as nine or 10-years-old being asked to pick up a lethal weapon and to use it, perhaps even against members of his or her own family.

Yet that is the daily reality for thousands of children who have become caught up in some of the world's most intractable conflicts, in some of the world's poorest countries.

This week in the European Parliament I lent my support to the growing campaign to abolish the use of child soldiers in conflict across the globe.

Abhorrent

This is a practice which is abhorrent by any standard, and what is more can never be justified from a military perspective.

International charity War Child works to help children affected by war, and estimates there are currently as many as 300,000 child soldiers involved in conflicts across the globe.

One in every 10 soldiers involved in wars today is therefore a child.

These young people have borne witness to, or participated in, some of the most unspeakable atrocities. Such experiences are known to cause lasting psychological trauma to even the most hardened adult soldier. For children, the effects can be shattering, and are often permanent.

The written declaration against the use of child soldiers that I launched this week in the European Parliament is intended to raise awareness of, and help mobilise the efforts of the international community against this horrific practice, so children are never again forced to fight and die in war.

As your local MEP, I receive a large amount of correspondence about human rights. Much of the recent correspondence on this topic has focused on slavery and, in particular, the bicentenary of Britain's abolition of the transatlantic slave trade.

As we rightly mark this important event in our history, it is important to remember that human slavery still exists in various forms throughout the world, with millions of people trafficked or forced into bonded labour.

The use of children as soldiers by governments or warlords is a particularly cruel form of modern slavery.

Children are children, no matter where they live in the world. Every child should be entitled to grow up, develop and learn in a safe environment. It is a premise that has long been taken for granted in this country, as well as others.

However, there remain places like the Democratic Republic of Congo, or Somalia, or Sudan, where the rights of the child are not universally recognised and where it is deemed acceptable to regard children as a plentiful and expendable resource.

Organisations like War Child and the Coalition to Stop the Use of Child Soldiers are doing crucial work to secure the freedom of child soldiers, as well as to assist with their rehabilitation into the societies from which they have been taken.

These children are innocent victims and we need to speak up on their behalf.

Bring back the birch

In view of our deficient society, I suggest we should bring back corporal punishment, the cane at school for minor bad behaviour and the birch for such a thing as bullying; not so harmful physically but not so good on the ego.

For violent behaviour, they would be charged, tried in court and, if guilty, sent to borstal, which used to run a carrot and stick regime where everyone would do their best to please the teacher.

In the day they would be kept marching and doing quite enjoyable physical tasks so they would realise how good life was feeling physically fit.

Many of the boys from borstal found the army and were often first for promotion.

Safer than Hackney

I was disappointed by the press coverage of a recent public meeting held in Faversham. Your paper reported that a resident felt less safe in the town than when they lived in Hackney. Here's the reality: Hackney had 11,981 crimes reported from April to June this year, compared to 4,202 for the entire borough of Swale for the same period.

Another comment was that young people had set off shotguns. This is inaccurate. Officers attended a report from a resident about firearms but found no evidence of this and after speaking to some local fisherman nearby discovered fireworks had been going off in Oare at the time.

I felt the public meeting went well with a good debate on both

STAR TURN: Maisie Trollette

Gay Ball needs more support

Last year's first Gay Ball at the Winter Gardens in Margate was held to be a great success, in spite of the failure of many of the local men to turn out to support it.

The event run this year by different organisers proved a different story, with, sadly, a poor attendance by both men and women. This was definitely partly due to a considerable rise in ticket prices and a significant lack of publicity for the event.

We believe that south east Kent desperately needs events such as the Gay Ball to bring the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender (LGBT) community together and give them a sense of belonging and commitment. We were not happy that the raffle held at the ball raised no money for LGBT charities and organisations.

Fortunately, the evening was saved by the legendary gay performer David Raven in his role as Maisie Trollette. His professionalism, talent and wicked sense of humour brought the evening alive. His commitment to a not-well supported event and his willingness to pose patiently for photos with enthusiastic fans set an example for other entertainers and illustrated why he is so loved on the scene. He and Chrissie du Cann, who was returning to the event for a second year, more than made up for the uninspiring choice of music from the DJ throughout most of the evening.

We spoke to several people at the end of the evening and there is a definite desire to make this a successful annual event for all the LGBT community and their straight friends. If that is to happen much more thought needs be given to next year's event and lessons must be learned.

He now castigates Kent grammar schools for only accepting "a tiny handful of special needs children".

The result of his cause for closing our grammar schools, on the spurious grounds of 'equality', could result in the lowering of standards all round.

When asked, parents in Kent voted for the retention of selective education, and Mr Frey should respect their decision.

Question of cash

I attended a presentation by London Array at Graveney Village Hall last year, about the plans for an electricity substation at Cleve Hill.

One of the company's representatives was quite clear and open in saying that the single most important factor in choosing this location in a Site of Special Scientific Interest was financial. He said that alternative – and in my opinion less destructive – sites had been looked into, and although technically feasible, would prove too costly. The main thrust of the presentation appeared to focus on the benefits of the wind farm itself, which of course was not an issue.

As I understand it London Array is a business, there to make a profit. It's not as if they are a charity, or the taxpayer would somehow benefit. For the sake of an expensive initial outlay, allowing the appeal simply added to the company's wealth at the expense of a beautiful part of our countryside.

sides. What was reported was quite different. How many public meetings do you know that end in a round of applause?

I understand some residents do have genuine concerns about antisocial behaviour in the town and I'm committed to dealing with their concerns and making their lives better. That's why I've already organised a targeted operation to deal with this type of behaviour and a Partners And Communities Together meeting being held on October 9 at Davington Primary School. Everyone is welcome to attend.

To end on a positive note, Mid Kent Police has received a performance achievement award for making the most substantial reduction in criminal damage over a four-month period to July. This clearly shows officers are getting out of their cars and doing the job.

Mocking the afflicted

While having much sympathy with R Franklin, who has to put up with endless gossip and chatter on mobile phones (KoS, September 2), I urge the adoption of a more considerate attitude to those making the noise.

First, it must be accepted that, by definition, half of the population has below average intelligence. It is probable that the transgressors are from that group. The need to talk incessantly on a mobile phone often indicates an irrational fear of loneliness, or the inability to achieve a sense of empathy with one's surroundings.

It needs intelligence to be able to listen to birdsong or to watch the world go by, and to achieve satisfaction from doing so. Then there are those with an overpowering feeling of inadequacy. They believe that talking on a mobile phone makes them look important, however trite the conversation might be.

Finally, there are the henpecked husbands. You often see them in supermarkets, mobile phones clapped to their ear, asking their wives' permission to buy this thing or that, for they do not have the authority to make such decisions for themselves. No, although they can be very annoying, they should be pitied for their weaknesses. As the late Frankie Howard would have said, "Don't mock the afflicted".

The big picture

What a refreshing letter from Stanford John, telling it like it really is.

Let's hope we see a few more letters from people concerned about what is really happening to our country, rather than just agonising over the minute.

Unfortunately, not enough people can, or want to, see the big picture of how our undemocratic governments assisted by the EU, which is achieving by stealth what Hitler couldn't achieve by force, are steadily eroding ordinary people's freedoms and charging them heavily for it.

The British need a wake-up call, as many of us fear for our future and that of our children, as proved by the hundreds of thousands deserting this country each year.

Phil Granger
West Malling

No democracy

Terry Kendall is right to demand a referendum on the revised EU Treaty, a revised Constitution in all but name. The duplicity of this Government is staggering. We were denied a vote on the original Constitution because the rejection by the Dutch and French had 'killed it off'. Now, when a virtually identical document is produced - as confirmed by a 'crowing' Angela Merkel - we are again denied a vote as the Constitution has metamorphosed into a Treaty. Democracy? I think not.

However, should a referendum be granted it is essential that any questions posed be specific, unambiguous and incapable of alternative interpretation once the results are known. We want no shenanigans to cloud this issue again.

The EU has become refuge to a host of mainly failed politicians who have caught a gravy train. The more legislation they produce the more they hope that we will believe in their usefulness and prolong their terms of office, regardless of the cost to their countries of origin.

Unfortunately for them, the electorate is waking up and would love to dismantle this hugely expensive, bureaucratic edifice.

My personal preference is for nothing more elaborate than a free trade area and I am hoping that the cracks in the current system will result in simplification.

I fear that I may have to wait a long time to realise this goal, but, in the meantime, bring on the referendum and let's get the process moving.

Finally, correction time. The electorate never voted on EEC entry. Ted Heath in his arrogance took us in without such a courtesy. The Wilson Government called a referendum on staying in two years later; this after we had dumped most of our former trading partners. Of course, we stayed in.

Edwardian protocol

Prince William has announced that one of his first duties on becoming king will be to restore "Her Royal Highness" status to his late mother, Princess Diana.

What a gracious tribute to Diana in recognition of her many good works for charities and a great comfort to her sons it would have been if HM The Queen could have found it in her heart to have made that restoration now, as a fitting part of the 10th anniversary ceremony commemorating the life of the princess.

Regrettably, with the senior royals, so deeply embedded in the protocols of the Edwardian era, such a kind gesture is unlikely to be made.

Geoff Bradford
Herne Bay

A load of old quangos

Regarding the opinion piece by Councillor Paul Carter, the leader of Kent County Council.

I have no doubt, he really does believe that he has good advice to give to the leaders of the Conservative Party. He blasts the present Government for instituting "a staggering 150 quangos since 1997" to bring the total of public bodies to 883.

I totally agree that this is a staggering figure and ought to be brought under control.

But to suggest, as he does, that this addition to unelected bodies is a unique fault of this Government, is to totally disregard the fact that if the 150 quangos had not been instituted since 1997 that would still have left 733 which the previous Tory Government had left behind.

I hear no complaint from Cllr Carter about his chairmanship of yet another unelected group, The Kent Public Service Board, which is in addition to the Kent Chiefs and Leaders Group and the Kent Local Strategic Partnerships.

If proliferation of public bodies is his complaint then it might serve as a useful example to scrap the extra group instituted by Kent which to most people seems to serve no useful purpose which is not already adequately dealt with elsewhere.

Not made in Britain

I was concerned by your article on page 17 of last week's paper, headlined 'Bullet trains on track'.

In this you say that the new high-speed trains are made by Hitachi, i.e. the Japanese.

Although I think it's good the high speed trains are arriving, why do the trains have to come from Japan? Back in the days of British Rail, BR used to build its own trains and they used to last for donkey's years.

ADULTS in work can now sign up for online courses they can complete without the need to attend a classroom.

West Kent College has joined with e-learning provider vision2learn to offer a range of NVQ programmes.

The courses are part-funded by the Learning and Skills Council and are aimed at employed people at all educational levels to help them improve their understanding and boost their skills. Students can study at their own pace and work independently through study units and complete assessments on an interactive study area.

Courses are open to residents over 16, employed and living in the EU for over three years. Visit: vision2learn.net.

Folkestone Uni's open day advice

STUDY: The new University Centre Folkestone is having an open day

STUDENTS considering attending the new University Centre Folkestone should take advantage of an open day this week.

Full and part-time courses include performing arts, information technology, multimedia, visual art, and business and management.

The Canterbury Christ Church University and the University of Greenwich will deliver the programmes at the new campus.

Advice

Tim Barry, the site manager, said: "The open day will help would-be students decide whether University Centre Folkestone is for them by giving them the opportunity to check out the facilities and academic departments, and gain advice from tutors."

"Staff will also be available to explain what each course involves and what qualifications people need to access them."

By CHRIS MURPHY

Following the launch, it is hoped the centre will attract around 300 students, which will increase to about 500 soon after.

Even the 30,000 sq ft building has an impressive history – it used to be a five-storey warehouse and glassworks near the harbour.

It has now been completely refurbished bringing it straight into the 21st century.

It is owned by charity Creative Foundation, set up by former Saga owner Roger De Haan, and sits in Folkestone's Creative Quarter.

This area is being modernised to attract art galleries, specialist shops, street sculpture and artists.

The quarter was designed to present the area with a cultural character and follows a massive investment from the foundation, which charges affordable rents to artists and creative businesses.

Visitors to the University Centre open day have no need to book – they can simply turn up and quiz the teams of experts on hand who have all the course details at their fingertips.

It takes place between 12pm and 7.30pm on Wednesday.

HELP US CHERISH AND NURTURE THE MINI: BECOME OUR MINI BRAND MANAGER

We are looking for an outstanding individual to join the MINI phenomenon.

Without doubt, MINI is one of the most successful cars ever launched. And it has continued to go from strength to strength. New MINI models, enhanced specs, more rave reviews, record sales and a lot more good things on the way. Now is an ideal time to start your own MINI adventure.

Naturally you will be a vibrant and enthusiastic individual, you may already be a Sales Manager looking for something different, have an F&I background or be an exceptional Sales Executive with management potential. Whatever your background, you will love cars, have an understanding of what MINI is all about, will know that you can make a difference and will cherish the opportunity to become part of the MINI adventure by joining the team at Broad Oak Canterbury.

If you feel you have what it takes, send a covering letter and CV, telling us why to:

Part-Time Distributors Wanted

Join our award winning team, and earn extra cash.

Our newspapers Kent on Sunday and Kentish Saturday Observer have already received national acclaim and now we will be launching 8 new newspapers in the heart of Kent in September.

Opportunities are available to join our team of "Road Runners" across a number of areas, handing our new papers to the public at strategic points, and delivering copies to shops and businesses.

Each person will have a designated area, and it will involve a minimum of 5 hours work every Wednesday morning from around 6.30am, more hours are available if required.

We will supply promotional clothing, and back up support. You will need to be at ease talking to the public and capable of working under your own initiative, and be of smart appearance as you will become a representative of our award winning company.

There is also a possibility of some promotional work prior to the September launch if you would like additional hours. Good rates of pay, please contact Barbara Coker on 01303 817072

If you are interested, and would like a job description, please contact: Barbara Coker on 01303 817072 or apply in writing to Barbara Coker, Marketing and Distribution Manager, KOS Media Ltd, Apple Barn, Hythe Road, Smeeth, Ashford, Kent TN25 6SR or email: barbara.coker@kosmedia.co.uk

FULL-TIME OPPORTUNITIES TO JOIN A REVOLUTION IN MEDIA

EVENTS & PROMOTIONS SALES EXECUTIVE

Due to our continued growth a rare opportunity is available in our Marketing and Events department for a bright, enthusiastic, and ambitious person to assist with the sale of exhibition stands to our increasing profile of events, and also to assist with the promotional activity of our award winning products, specifically with the launch of our unique local online services and 8 new local newspapers.

The successful candidate should have some previous sales experience, be self determined, and possess good organisational skills.

You will report to our events manager and be responsible for contacting potential exhibitors for our events initially by telephone, and securing bookings for these events. In addition you will be required to help create promotional opportunities for our new products, either by linking with other established events or creating our own instore or shopping centre promotions. You will be working with a team of promotional staff, and ensuring that the company is presented in a professional manner at all times.

This is a varied and exciting role, that will also require some weekend work especially during the peak summer months, energy, enthusiasm, and the ability to smile your way through the day are essential.

If you think you have what it takes, then we would like to hear from you.

In the first instance contact Richard Purvis Marketing Director on 01303 817071

If you are interested, and would like a job description, please contact: Richard Purvis on 01303 817071 or apply in writing to Richard Purvis, Marketing Director, KOS Media Ltd, Apple Barn, Hythe Road, Smeeth, Ashford, Kent TN25 6SR or email: richard.purvis@kosmedia.co.uk

ASHFORD AND VICTORIA GATE

Ashford is undergoing major transformation from a former market town to one of four designated official growth areas in the South East of England with a £650 million regeneration scheme underway including upgraded transport links, a new shopping centre, leisure facilities including a Leisure Centre and International Standard Athletic Stadium together with the Ashford Learning Campus providing further education and courses tailored to employers specific needs to support the local economy, for up to 14,000 full and part time students. The William Harvey Hospital has a full Accident and Emergency unit. Ashford has two Primary Health Care Centres with plans for 2 more providing far reaching facilities. Home to over 50 schools, Ashford produces higher than the national average of A* to C GCSE passes and plans to create a further 15 Primary and 3 Secondary Schools over the next 20 years to directly benefit the community.

From 2009 the high speed rail link domestic 'bullet train' commuter services travelling from speeds of up to 140 mph will be operational reducing journey times from Ashford to St Pancras to 37 minutes while Eurostar commutes passengers to Lille in under 1 hour or Paris in under 2 hours.

Ashford is ideally located for the Eurotunnel which takes passengers, their cars and also road freight to Calais in around 35 minutes. In addition, the Port of Dover with its thriving ferry services is around 20 miles away. These factors have combined to give Ashford the name of Gateway to Europe and it is anticipated that migration of people and businesses to the area will increase from the current status of 16% foreign owned firms in Kent based in Ashford.

Plans are proposed to create 31,000 homes and 28,000 jobs by 2031 in addition to 2 million sq ft of commercial and office development.

House prices are currently reported at 30% cheaper than London and 7% cheaper than the South East average with office rents currently quoted at 68% less than London.

One of these new developments is Victoria Gate, a select development of 6 apartments and 7 houses, built on the site of a former orchard, designed and constructed by renowned Kent based builder Pentland Homes and located in a cul-de-sac near the town centre close to shops, schools, Victoria Park and Ashford International Station. The properties are accessed via a gated drive leading to an attractive landscaped courtyard and have allocated parking spaces.

Each of the apartments has 2 bedrooms, fitted kitchens with Paula Rosa units and quality appliances including oven, hob, extractor, fridge/freezer and washer/dryer. Three of the apartments have generous sized gardens and all have a parking space.

The houses comprise three varying house types of which two are 3 bedroom end and mid terrace properties with accommodation arranged over two or three storeys and a master bedroom with en suite on selected plots. All the houses have private gardens and two parking spaces.

Prices range from £163,950 for the apartments and £213,950 for the houses.

A RARE FIND!

The long awaited release of Holt Close, North Cray Road, Sidcup is creating a huge amount of interest and with just 4 detached houses for sale this has come as no surprise because it is a unique small new development of executive homes a rare find these days!

The properties offer great family accommodation, the four bedroom homes have two reception rooms, lovely contemporary fitted kitchen/breakfast room with integrated appliances and separate utility room. The superb living room with doors leading out to the rear garden is enhanced by the high ceiling, deep skirting board and attractive coving.

Upstairs are four double bedrooms, family bathroom whilst the master bedroom also benefits from an ensuite. Outside the blocked paved driveway leads to garage whilst the front garden will be landscaped. The gardens for both of the four bedroom houses have walled rear gardens.

The imposing five bedroom house offers three reception rooms, breakfast/kitchen and utility room. There are five bedrooms on the first floor together with family bathroom and two ensuites. To the front is a large paved parking/turning area leading to double garage, both rear gardens benefit from some walled boundary.

These properties are being built by a local well renowned builder who pays attention to detail as can be seen in the high ceilings throughout, deep skirting boards, coving to most ceilings, quality doors and door furniture as well as stylish contemporary kitchens and bathrooms.

Prices start from £475,000 and viewings can be arranged with RPC Dartford office on 01322 228891.

www.rpcnewhomes.co.uk

New homes offering accommodation over two floors are becoming rare as developer's are dictated by planning to provide larger accommodation on small plots, thus necessitating accommodation over three or more floors.

Within the village of St. Mary's Platt, Nr. Sevenoaks, Monro Homes are offering a small scheme of just fourteen new homes - all on two floors. St. Mary's Platt is situated in the heart of the Weald of West Kent and surrounded by acres of beautiful rolling countryside, hop farms and orchards - yet easily accessible to motorway links at Wrotham Heath or Sevenoaks (M25/M26/M20) or there are main line Stations at nearby Borough Green and Sevenoaks for services to London.

With over half the properties now reserved/sold Monro Homes are still able to offer a charming 3 bedroom home (either semi or terrace), which incorporates versatile accommodation with all the benefits we now expect from our new home - The master bedroom has the benefit of an en suite shower room and fitted wardrobe, each of the other two bedrooms also have the benefit of built-in cupboard and the family bathroom features a fully tiled shower cubicle as well as the bath. The wall tiling has been carefully chosen to create a luxury finish.

The ground floor offers the kitchen fitted with range of integrated appliances and small breakfast area. There is also the benefit of separate fitted utility room and cloakroom/wc. The living room to the rear opens onto the garden through French doors, each garden is fully fenced and laid with patio area and lawn. Prices from £299,995

The only two 4 bedroom detached houses are now also available for early occupation - having the benefit of a conservatory off the attractive living room plus the open plan luxury kitchen/breakfast room create a very light and airy atmosphere for to-day's lifestyle - also ideal when entertaining. Again all the bedrooms have benefit of built-in wardrobes, with an ensuite shower room featured off the master suite. The bay windows to the front of the property both on the ground floor and first create light into each room.

Available at £475,000

With 2 show homes open for viewing Thursday - Monday 10 am - 4 pm or at other times with the agents, an early visit is strongly recommend to see exactly what Monro Homes are able to offer you. Incentives are in place to assist your purchase, including part exchange (subject to valuation & status), so telephone 01732 780691 for further information or RPC on 01732 363633 or a visit to the web site will give further insight in these new homes www.rpcnewhomes.co.uk

Maybe you have been on a workshop or a seminar recently and want to see what investment property is available to you? Or you have seen programmes on TV showing you how much money you can make and now you want to find out for yourself how simple and easy it really can be. Whether it be off plan, or stock units or overseas, rental income, capital growth or both, the facts are more and more people are turning to property investment as a way forward towards their pension plan and they are generating capital growth and income from it.

As experts in property investment, RPC aim to minimise the risks to our clients through our due diligence and ongoing support process, and being a part of a group which specialises and unique within the industry as one of the leading agents for the sale of Land and New homes, we are based at the source of property and in a prime position to enable us to negotiate the best opportunities.

Although house prices and rental demands can fluctuate, the popularity of buy to let is unlikely to diminish in the short term because of the current shortage of affordable housing throughout the UK and the historic performance of property against other investments.

Our success comes from listening to our clients and offer opportunities to meet their needs and provide a level of service that we believe is second to none.

ONE STOP SHOP FOR NEW HOMES IN KENT AND SUSSEX

In an effort to save people going all round the houses searching for their dream residence, a special exhibition of new homes across Kent and Sussex is being hosted on Sunday, September 23, in Maidstone, by property experts RPC Land and New Homes.

The Hilton Hotel is the venue for the RPC New Homes Showcase, which will include details and information on brand new housing developments across the region.

People will be able to view details on a wide range of developments, with experts on hand to discuss and deal with enquiries as well as take reservations. Also at the exhibition, which runs from 10am to 4pm, will be stands and information on land and investment, finance, renting and furnishing packages for buy-to-let properties. The RPC Land Team will be available to discuss turning that unwanted garden, redundant building or brownfield site into potential building plots.

RPC Regional New Homes Director Theresa Hales said: "This is a one-stop shop for anyone looking to buy a new property in Kent or Sussex. We will have information on a wide selection of properties, over 50 developments as well as other attractions and I would urge anyone thinking of moving home or considering buying property as an investment, not to miss out on this must-see exhibition."

Theresa added: "As well as showcasing new homes to purchasers, we will be offering RPC services to both large and small developers, as well as private land owners. Our land department can source sites for development as well as advise on the best possible solution for a plot. Large or small, brownfield or back garden, this show will offer the chance to come and talk to the experts."

RPC Land and New Homes has offices in Ashford, Tonbridge, Chatham, Maidstone and Dartford in Kent as well as Haywards Heath in West Sussex. Visit the website www.rpcnewhomes.co.uk for more information.

Autumn 2007

Landlords may cash in over empty threats

GOVERNMENT plans to slash business rates exemptions for empty commercial and industrial premises could see landlords cashing in by selling their sites for residential development.

At present, owners pay no rates at all on vacant industrial and warehouse buildings, while empty retail, office and other commercial properties bear 50 per cent of full rates. However, under new proposals this arrangement will be axed. In its place will come a short period of rates relief, six months for industrial/warehouse and three for commercial, followed by all owners having to pay full rates.

Empty buildings owned by charities and community sports clubs would be exempt from any charges.

The idea behind the proposals, which look likely to be introduced next year, is to encourage more empty premises and brownfield sites to be bought back to use and RPC Land Director Graeme Dowd believes that landlords struggling to fill their premises could decide to cash in.

He said: "As well as a literal waste of space, these buildings can often be run down and shabby in appearance.

"If landlords are now faced with a rising rates bill they should consider the options and selling up for residential development is a very attractive one."

He added: "Landlords may not be aware of what their site is worth and it's worth talking to a professional to see what is the best plan and mix of dwellings for a plot.

"With land that has potential for development at a premium, prices are running at a high level. "Commercial or industrial plots which may have been considered in the past as untouchable due to the remedial work needed to make them suitable for housing are now being considered as worthy investments due to the scarcity and high prices of land. One upshot of this could be to ease the pressure on greenbelt land by providing more brownfield sites for development. If this could be coupled with reforms to the speed of the planning system, real progress could be made to delivering increasing housing targets."

Commercial premises are a top target for new homes developers

COMMERCIAL premises - especially petrol stations or car dealers - located in residential areas, are increasingly becoming attractive targets for developers with landowners potentially sitting on a gold mine.

There is a growing trend for supermarkets, shops and car garages to move out of town centres or the traditional village sites often relocating to business or retail parks, where access is easier and space available larger.

Smaller independent petrol stations are also finding life increasingly hard and many are now considering selling their land for redevelopment.

RPC Land and New Homes' Managing Director Peter Randall said that in large towns across Kent such as Ashford, Canterbury and Tunbridge Wells, more and more commercial sites such as car dealerships were moving to their own out of town space.

He said: "It's a very attractive option for a car dealership to move a bespoke new area with better facilities, access and a larger space for parking and storing vehicles.

Traditional

"To be alongside other car dealerships is also good for business and we are seeing in towns across Kent, firms leaving the traditional sites to move to their own more adaptable space outside."

Mr Randall said other premises including petrol stations were also looking to relocate, adding: "We are noticing that the traditional village garage with petrol pumps and a workshop is finding it hard to compete with supermarkets which can buy fuel cheaply. Smaller garages are simply being squeezed out of the market. We are currently dealing with a number of such sites. Smaller car garages with franchises are also coming under pressure to move out of town to business or retail parks where there are other similar businesses.

"Taking into account potential contamination issues on petrol garages which have to be thoroughly investigated, these sites can be ideal for residential development and owners could be sitting on a potentially lucrative asset. In the majority of cases residential values are greater than the existing commercial use value.

"These can be prime brownfield sites and in the main councils are willing to consider planning applications for change of use to residential development."

Speak To The Experts

POWERED BY KOS MEDIA

Project Officers x3 (Local Learning Network)

Starting salary £22,268, with progression through contribution related pay to £25,521 per annum

Countywide but based at Advisory Service Kent in Maidstone

This is an exciting opportunity to be involved at the start of establishing the six Local Learning Networks (LLN's) across the County and develop a close working partnership with their contributing Clusters and multi-agency partners.

Advisory Service Kent (ASK) provides specialist curriculum and leadership advice and support to schools and early years settings. The emphasis is on the development of partnerships to share good practice and provide targeted intervention to raise standards.

As part of the team, you will build a proactive relationship and be responsible for the identification and commissioning of continuing professional development (CPD) of educational and multi-agency staff. As a self-motivated team player, working on your own initiative, you will be responsible for the liaison and developments within two of the Local Learning Networks centred in either East, Mid, or West Kent. You will be required to attend appropriate meetings in the area as well as liaising with the central administrative delivery team. This post is subject to an Enhanced Disclosure Application to the Criminal Records Bureau. Essential car user allowance available.

Head Teacher

Leadership Group Points 12-18 (£45,822 to £53,115 p.a.) Required for January 2008
West Kent Health Needs Education Service, Gravesend

We are a medical pupil referral unit for pupils with needs which prevent their attendance at their home school.

Demonstrating enthusiasm, commitment, flexibility and a thorough understanding of social inclusion, you will need sound knowledge and practical experience of dealing with young people with a range of difficulties, and a patient and sympathetic approach. The ability to deal with issues creatively and to maintain a sense of humour will be essential. Change management experience is essential as is a comprehensive understanding of budgeting. It is also necessary to demonstrate the ability to work collaboratively with local cluster boards and schools, to further develop an inclusive provision to meet the diverse needs of the pupils.

You should have qualified teacher status, and hold or be undertaking the National Professional Qualification for Headship.

This post is subject to an Enhanced Disclosure Application to the Criminal Records Bureau.

For an application form and job description for this post, please write to Sue Lattimore, Room 2.08, Sessions House, County Hall, Maidstone, Kent ME14 1XQ or telephone 01622 696554. Please quote reference: *CFE/07/313.

Closing date: Midday, 18 September 2007. Interview date: 27 September 2007.

School Support Staff Consultant

Starting salary £34,507 p.a. with progression through contribution related pay to £39,712 p.a.

Main base ASK, Oxford Road, Maidstone

Exciting opportunity within Advisory Service Kent

Highly motivated, you will drive forward and lead the development of school support staff. This is a cross county role working across all phases of education supporting and advising schools on wider workforce issues.

This post will be responsible for:

- The strategic lead for school support staff development
- The professional development programme for school support staff working in partnership with other agencies and providers.

With the fast moving, exciting developments in education as part of Kent's Work Force Development team, this post offers an opportunity to be involved in cutting edge development within this excellent authority.

For an informal discussion, please contact Carrie Beech, Principal Adviser Professional Development or Caroline Pitt, Workforce Development Manager at ASK Oxford Road on 01622 203800.

This post is subject to an Enhanced Disclosure Application to the Criminal Records Bureau.

Claims Officer

Starting salary £17,842 p.a. with progression through contribution related pay to £19,572 p.a.

Sessions House, Maidstone

We are looking for an enthusiastic person to join our busy team based in Maidstone handling motor and property damage insurance claims.

You should have a good standard of education with GCSE passes or equivalent in English and Mathematics. You should also have good keyboard skills, the ability to quickly learn new systems, good communication skills and be able to prioritise and effectively manage your own workload whilst keeping to strict deadlines. Previous claims handling experience would be an advantage but is not essential as full training will be provided.

Closing date: Midday, 21 September 2007. Interview date: 8 October 2007.

Teaching Assistant

Starting salary £13,619 p.a. with progression through contribution related pay to £15,440 p.a. pro rata
Term time only

Warm Stone Project, Folkestone

This is an innovative alternative curriculum project for KS4 students with complex needs, involving an engaging and broad curriculum and a new slant on curriculum delivery. The project works closely with CAMHS and KCC Social Services staff.

Committed to high quality and genuinely imaginative education, the Warm Stone Project is looking for a teaching assistant to join an existing creative staff team in the centre.

Some of these posts involve working in a more flexible programme, based within the Warm Stone Project and on negotiation of the learning programme with the pupils and a client group with more complex needs. The programme offers creative opportunities for teachers, teaching assistants and pupils in very small groups.

You will have to provide evidence of effective working with disengaged KS4 students and have a proven commitment to curriculum innovation.

This post is subject to an Enhanced Disclosure Application to the Criminal Records Bureau.

Please quote reference: CFE/07/318.

Closing date: Midday, 27 September 2007.

Housing & Community Services

Youth Development Officer - Maternity Cover

£20,004 - £24,444 + essential user car allowance

Shepway District Council is a forward looking organisation that aims to improve the quality of life of all its citizens and to ensure that it takes into account the views of all sectors of the local community.

In order to help us to meet these aims, an experienced, confident and enthusiastic individual is required to help us develop a portfolio of projects aimed at enhancing the services available for children and young people across the district.

You will possess relevant qualifications and have a minimum of two years experience in delivering youth related projects. You must be an effective communicator with strong presentation skills and have the ability to work on your own initiative.

You should have the skills required to develop and maintain partnerships with a variety of agencies and groups of young people. As well as possessing a positive approach to working with young people and encouraging the development of opportunities for the young people of Shepway, you will be required to maintain records and produce reports.

If you think you can make a positive contribution to the opportunities for young people in Shepway we would like to hear from you.

Due to the nature of the position you will be subject to an Enhanced Disclosure application to the Criminal Records Bureau.

For an informal discussion, please contact Len Mayatt, Cultural & Leisure Services Manager on 01303 853322 or email len.mayatt@shepway.gov.uk or Tamasin Jarrett, Youth Development Officer on 01303 853277 or email tamasin.jarrett@shepway.gov.uk

For an application form either download at www.shepway.gov.uk or email jobs@shepway.gov.uk or call our 24 hour answerphone service on 01303 853481.

Closing date for completed applications is Friday 21 September 2007. Interviews will be held shortly after the closing date. We would like the successful applicant to commence duties early November.

Shepway District Council is an Equal Opportunities Employer and welcomes applications irrespective of race, colour, age, sex or disability.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

TERMS AND CONDITIONS FOR ACCEPTANCE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

1. KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd (“the publisher”) reserves the right of any advertisement without notice or explanation. In these terms the word “advertiser” shall be construed to include any person or organisation placing an advertisement on behalf of another.
2. Guarantee of insertion cannot be given and the publishers shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused by any error inaccuracy in the printing of an advertisement or by the total or partial failure (however caused) of publication or distribution of any publication in which an advertisement is scheduled to appear. In no case shall the total liability of the publisher for any misprint, error or omission exceed the price charged by the publisher for that advertisement.
3. Advertisements will be accepted only on the express condition that the advertiser warrants that the advertisement does not in any way contravene any existing legislation and in particular the Trade and Description Act 1968 and the Consumer Credit Act 1974. It is the responsibility of all advertisers to ensure that recruitment related advertising meets current employment legislation and KOS Media takes no responsibility for liability in errors and omissions to the content of this newspaper, relating to employment law.
4. Where shrinkage of an advertisement occurs for whatever reason, the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
6. Claims for any error or inaccuracy in the printing of an advertisement must be made within 10 days of publication to the accounts department.
7. No liability is accepted for any loss or damage alleged to have arisen through delay in forwarding replies to Box numbers, however caused, nor for the loss or damage to any artwork supplied.
8. Advertisers are requested to check their advertisements after the first insertion. The publisher will not be responsible for any errors on subsequent insertions, which have not been advised to them.
9. Cancellation must be advised one week prior to date of publication of an advertisement.
10. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
11. Should the rate for advertisements be altered, the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly.
12. a) All accounts due for payment shall be notified to the Advertiser by the 30th day following the date of the invoice, time to be of the essence. All sums due to the Publishers shall be paid in full, and the Advertiser shall have no right of set off in any circumstances.
b) In the event that payment is not received by the Publishers by the due date, the Publisher shall be entitled to suspend all further advertising until payment is received and/or repudiate the contract.
c) In the event that payment is not received by the Publishers by the due date the Publisher reserves the right to charge interest on all overdue balances calculated on a daily basis at the rate of two per cent above the minimum lending rate of National Westminster Bank Plc from time to time in force.
d) Notwithstanding anything in these terms and conditions or implied to the contrary, in the event of the Advertiser ceasing to use the services of the Publisher (for whatever reason), the whole amount of monies due from the Advertiser to the date of cessation shall fall due for immediate payment.
e) The Advertiser will be liable for all costs incurred by the Publisher in the recovery of debts not paid by the due date.
f) Payment may be made by cheque, credit transfer, direct debit, cash and any major credit card.
13. Any discount which the Publisher may have agreed with the Advertiser shall be forfeited in the event of failure by the Advertiser to complete the contract or to meet the above credit terms.
14. Advertising Agency commission will be allowed to those advertisers recognised by the Newspaper Society, but shall not exceed ten per cent and will be subject to the terms of that recognition. This commission will not be allowed if the Advertising Agency fails to meet the terms.
15. All private advertisement and certain categories as laid down by the Publisher must be prepaid.
16. The Advertiser agrees to indemnify both the publisher and the Group in respect of all costs, damages or other charges falling upon the Publisher or any of the companies within the Group as the result of legal action or threatened legal action or threatened legal arising from the publication of the advertisement.
17. Order for an advertisement shall amount to acceptance of these terms and conditions, and any condition placed on an order by an Advertiser shall be null and void in so far as it conflicts with them.
18. Copyright in advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the publishers consent.

Saab retains 'Aero' heritage

DRAMATIC new features on the radical facelift for the Saab 9-3 prove that the Swedish marque continues to be inspired by former owner, the Saab aircraft company.

Saab's big-selling compact executive range features an aerodynamic all-new bonnet, front bumper and wings, headlights, door panels and rear-end styling, all inspired by the stunning Aero X concept car – the blueprint for future Saab styling.

Maidstone Saab is showing its confidence in the new design with a major launch and test drive event for all comers this weekend at its Holborough site.

Kevin Root, brand manager, said: "Initial reaction to the new 9-3 has been extremely positive thanks to significant development across three key areas: design, performance and handling."

In a tilt at Audi's quattro all-wheel drive system, Saab will also soon offer its 'XWD' or cross wheel drive on the Saab 9-3 Aero Saloon and SportWagon sporting flagships.

Audi's new A4 turns up heat

AUDI and Mercedes have turned up the heat on the compact executive car top seller, the BMW 3-Series.

No sooner has Mercedes hit back with a vastly improved C-Class challenger, than Audi takes the wraps off a better looking and more capable replacement for its popular A4 – order books open next week.

The A4 now has the longest wheelbase in its class, boosting interior space and the composure of the car's handling and ride.

Audi is also making much of the car's new 'dynamic' steering and, for quattro models, a new generation four-wheel-drive system.

But the eye should play a greater part in decision making on this new generation A4; there is a strong resemblance to the classy two-door A5 – effectively, an A4 coupe anyway – and a slippery aerodynamic body.

Versatile Antara flexes its muscles

WHILE coping with the shock of Vauxhall's return to the 4x4 market after four years' absence, it is easy to overlook some finer detail in its belated successor.

The new Antara (priced from £19,995), apart from being one of the more handsome SUVs (sports utility vehicles) on the market, borrows heavily from Vauxhall's 'Flex' philosophy of load carrying versatility inside.

By early next year, buyers will also be able to specify a 'FlexFix' system to ease bicycle transport.

It is a variation of the device already available on the Corsa supermini, but while market demand on that model seems like fanciful thinking, it could be a 'must have' for Antara buyers.

The £475 FlexFix does away with the need for a conventional carrier or roof rack version. It simply pulls out of the rear bumper; no parts need storage in the garage or loft and no tools are required.

TWO big fanfares have sounded ahead of Peugeot launching its new Ford Focus challenging 308 hatchback on September 20.

First is confirmation that the newcomer has gained EuroNCAP's coveted maximum five stars for occupant protection in a crash.

Second is the unveiling of the 308 SW Prologue concept car – more than a glimpse of the estate car cum MPV version that will soon follow the hatch into production.

'SW' is a formula first seen in the 308's predecessor, the 307 SW, and since extended to include other 'lifestyle' versions of Peugeot's key models. The 308 version is expected to have a panoramic glass roof to enhance a feeling of space and visibility, particularly for those riding in the back.

It will be spacious enough too for an optional third row of seats, echoing a feat achieved impressively by the 307 SW and maintaining a Peugeot tradition for estate cars for big families.

In the meantime, dealers hope the main plank of the range, the new five-door hatchback, can bring much-needed sales into a sector where the 307 has been under intense pressure from newer and abler rivals.

A three-door version arrives in December, but prices for the five-door start from £11,995 and much attention has been paid to low emissions and fuel consumption – the car's specially designed Michelin Energy Saver tyres can save a tonne of CO₂ over the life of the vehicle.

Further down the road, Peugeot also plans to offer a diesel electric hybrid model to challenge the likes of the Toyota Prius and Honda Civic saloon.

Notable standard equipment on all 308s at launch include: front, side and curtain airbags, electric front windows, a steering column adjustable for reach and rake, passenger and driver seat height adjustment, but there is no air con thrown in until you pay at least another £900 to get the 'S' spec level.

Peugeot pumps up the volume for 308 launch

Sirion 1.0 S.
Voted by What Car?
Car of the Year Awards 2007
- Supermini Best Buy for under £7,500.

“...our best buy is the Daihatsu Sirion... its blend of value, style, space and reliability make it a really smart buy. It's good to drive, the 1.0 litre engine is lively enough to keep up with town traffic and you'll get a kit list you'd not expect for the money.” What Car?

And now with an extra £500 on all Sirions for a limited time, you get all the above for even less.

But don't just take their word for it. With standard equipment including air conditioning, remote central locking and all electric windows on all 1.0 litre and 1.3 litre models, why not test drive the superb Sirion today? You'll wonder why you hadn't before.

Lexus IS

COMEDIAN Steve Coogan's odious Alan Partridge alter-ego was one celebrity 'endorsement' that Lexus could have done without.

The sort of thrusting, image-conscious young executive company car 'user chooser' targeted by the IS was the very opposite of Partridge, with his naff sheepskin coat and driving gloves.

So, when his Lexus IS hit a car park bollard in the TV show 'I'm Alan Partridge', this small bump could have been a major dent for Toyota's upmarket image.

But the Lexus rose above it and, despite the original car's lack of a diesel option, went on to give BMW, Mercedes and Audi a fright in a crucial sector of the market – recruit people to your brand here and they should stay and trade up to bigger and more profitable models as they move up the ladder.

For the second generation IS – launched in 2005 – Lexus raised the stakes by adding a diesel and creating an even more harmonious and well-made design and there are reports of a fiery BMW M3-style sporting flagship to come.

Lexus IS survives

Instead of the gimmicky dashboard of the original, complete with its 'Chronograph' binnacle to house dials and gauges – an attempt to engage with the target customers' penchant for designer watches – there is more class and order to the latest interior.

The quality of the materials has also reached new heights and while there are four trim levels, the standard level of kit imposes yet more pressure on rivals.

Prestige brands have vied with each other lately to offer the very best audio packages, so a 13-speaker sound system with in-dash six-disc CD changer comes as standard, but you can upgrade to an awesome Mark Levinson sound system that includes DVD and surround sound as well as sat nav and an excellent rear parking TV monitor – even bollard-busting Alan Partridge wouldn't have messed up with that one.

This package will set you back a further £2,710, but maybe that is not such a price to pay when you check out IS specifications and note the brand's impressive reputation for build, reliability and low depreciation.

Our test car was the IS220d Sport; a sensible choice with its lively yet frugal 175bhp turbodiesel and an engaging drive thanks to the Sport's chassis management system or VDIM as Lexus calls it – I won't bore you what that stands for.

In short, the car has high levels of grip and poise even on winding and poorly surfaced country roads.

Lexus has really worked hard on this and while it does not quite shade the respected BMW 3-Series, it makes up with a more comfortable ride and competes more directly with the all-new Mercedes C-Class.

I was less impressed by the engine; it is decent enough, but does not threaten equivalents in the ubiquitous BMW 320d, Audi's now ageing A4 2.0TDI or the impressive Mercedes C220 diesel – all feel more willing and refined.

By now, you may suspect I'm closing in on a damning 'jack of all trades – master of none' verdict, which would be a shame; the Lexus is better than that.

It is actually near the top of the pile in all departments and there are two further factors in its favour: distinctive high-shouldered styling with sharply-angled front and rear lights and the Lexus ownership experience.

The latter is the feel-good factor that has made the brand the consistent number one in customer satisfaction surveys – and the franchise that most motor dealers covet.

Even the hapless Alan Partridge cannot knock that one down.

Unusually, we don't have any interest in our Vito - 0% in fact

A Mercedes-Benz Vito is always fantastic value. Average service intervals of 18,000 miles, a powerful CDI engine and a range of body lengths, roof heights and vehicle weights are just some of the excellent benefits. And now it's even better value with 0% interest unto 31st October 2007.

Big investment in Thai eatery

By CHRIS MURPHY

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

MORE than £100,000 has been spent on refurbishing a new Thai restaurant.

The owners of Simply Thai at The Watermark in the village of Eynsford will be using locally sourced ingredients where possible and have their own authentic Thai chef.

Fusion

New owners Chris Pritchard and Khalid Ahmed bought the restaurant in a 600-year-old building in June with the intention of providing the best of Thai fusion and classic Thai cuisine.

During a major refurbishment, it was closed for ten weeks while workmen carried out the large project, including putting the floor down twice to get it right.

The fragile fabric of the old building proved hardest to overcome. The interior was completely gutted to allow the fitting of new kitchens.

Included in the budget was £20,000 on a new extraction system, and £10,000 on a new floor.

Interior designer Celia James, from Tunbridge Wells, was brought in to infuse contemporary design with Eastern influence.

Mr Pritchard said: "We're so pleased with the final look of the restaurant; we wanted to generate excitement

AMBITION: Owners spent more than £100,000 on their new venture from the combination of old and new, East and West, and we decided to take our time, and not to cut corners, in order to get it just right.

"It's been a long process to get where we wanted to be – the results make it all worthwhile – we've now got a chic restaurant in a wonderful location with a top-class chef and we're doing something unique as far as the cuisine is concerned.

"There are lots of Thai restaurants but we haven't come across anyone who does what we do – local produce with an authentic Thai flavour.

"If you go to any other Thai restaurant you will not get what we provide. For example dishes like our North Downs rack of lamb in a Thai sauce provide European portions, local produce and authentic Thai flavour.

"My business partner and I were really keen to build very strong ties within the community – all our suppliers are Kent based.

"We're keen to keep things 'green'

– we're working with local suppliers to source local ingredients; meat is being sourced straight from Williamsons of Sevenoaks which only stocks local meat – much of it from its own farm.

"The ice cream is from Solleys Dairy Farm in Ripple, Deal, the vegetables from Morgan's Greengrocers in Crayford, fish and seafood from Billingsgate and the wine from Laithwaites of Locksbottom."

Recycled

Marketing material is printed by Cedar Press in Southborough, using vegetable-based ink on recycled and sustainable paper where possible.

The restaurant opened its doors for the first time last week for invited neighbours and locals followed by a launch on Wednesday and then for the public on Thursday.

Prudential buys up Medway leisure park

THE Medway Valley Leisure Park in Strood, home of the Cineworld cinema and several popular restaurants, has been sold.

Insurance giant Prudential snapped up the property from Capital and Counties for £33.59 million.

The 19-acre park comprises tenants including Cineworld, Virgin Active, Gala Bingo, Frankie & Benny's and Chiquitos.

The annual rental income is £1.76 million but this could potentially increase as a result of planning permission for even more development.

Permission could also be obtained for a hotel and bowling alley.

Jonnie Ray of Sibal Welch, which advised Capital, said: "This sale reflects the continuing strength of the South East leisure market in the wake of market uncertainty in other sectors."

CURRENTLY all employees are entitled to four weeks' paid annual leave. For the average employee working a five-day week this equates to 20 days a year. But all this is due to change.

As currently there is no statutory right to paid leave on bank or public holidays some employers incorporated these holidays into the annual leave entitlement. This would leave the employee with only 12 days to take on the dates that they choose.

Amendments to the Working Time Regulations will mean that this entitlement is soon to change. The current entitlement will be increased (using the average employee example to 28 days). This will take place in two stages. The first increase takes place on October 1 when the allowance increases to 4.8 weeks (from 20 to 24 days for that average worker).

The second stage increases the allowance to 5.6 weeks on April 1 2009 (24 to 28 days for the average worker).

Obviously those that do not work the standard week will have the allowances prorated down. Those who work a six-day week should be prorated up but as from October the statutory minimum for such employees this will be capped at 28 days.

How will your annual leave be changing?

This does not preclude any employer from offering any more than the statutory minimum and those that already do will already comply with the new limits without any alterations or discussion being necessary.

Those employers that include bank holidays in their annual entitlement will need to recalculate the holiday entitlement for their workforce in readiness for the two changes.

To assist with the transition the government has stated that contrary to current provisions the additional element of the entitlement (four days initially) can be paid in lieu to employees who want to take the money rather than the holiday.

This provision only lasts until the date of the second increase when employers need to ensure as a matter of health and safety, employees take minimum holiday entitlement.

The issues relating to whether those on long-term sick leave accrue holiday is waiting for clarification from the European Court of Justice. The decision so far at the Court of Appeal is they do not but employers should wait for the decision.

Right at the hub of design

ARCHITECTS from Kent have been chosen to design the centre-piece of a major new development in the Thames Gateway.

Hazle McCormack Young LLP fought off stiff competition to win the contract to design the Dartford Community Hub for Kent County Council.

The Hub will form the centre-piece of the Bridge development, a 264-acre brownfield site with 1,500 new homes.

It will feature a new two-form entry primary school, offering a teaching and learning environment for families living and working at The Bridge.

It will also include facilities for the wider community, including a youth centre, nursery, adult learning and Kent Adult Social Services.

The Hub's design incorporates all the features into a series of state-of-the-art pavilions, all surrounding a striking conical centre-piece containing the reception area, visitors' centre, cafe and library.

It will be built using eco-friendly materials and methods.

Richard Hazle, of the architects, said: "The overall redevelopment will act as a catalyst for many others around the country."

Twenty20 title up for grabs at St Lawrence

CRICKET: Beckenham are hosting a free cricket extravaganza next weekend, with clubs from four counties competing for the Shepherd Neame Twenty20 Club Championship.

The County Ground is opening its doors to everyone for the end of season competition, which will feature clubs from the highest grade of amateur cricket.

Bromley will represent Kent and take on the winners from Surrey in the first semi-final.

In the other half, Finchley from Middlesex take on Essex side Saffron Walden for a place in the final, which has a prize fund of £10,000.

David Townshend, of Shepherd Neame, said it will be a great opportunity to see some of the best cricketers in the South East.

"It is extremely generous of Kent County Cricket Club to allow free admission, which will allow everyone to see the sport in its most exhilarating guise: Twenty20," he said.

KOS Media has a pair of VIP tickets to give away for the championship. To be in with a chance, just answer the following question: where will the Shepherd Neame Twenty20 Club Championship be played?

Send your answers, including a phone number or e-mail address to: Twenty20 Competition, Edwards Harvey, The Mill House, Hollingworth Court, Ashford Road, Maidstone, Kent ME14 5PP.

Ashford international

FOOTBALL: International football comes to Ashford Town on Tuesday evening, when Montserrat are in town for a friendly.

The unusual fixture came about because Ashford boss Clive Walker used to play with Kenny Dyer, who is now the Montserrat under-21 manager.

The Leeward Islanders are in need of match practice ahead of qualifying matches for the 2010 World Cup.

They are ranked 199th in the world by FIFA and have won just two games in their history. Their most notable player is Junior Mendes, who has played for Huddersfield, Grimsby and Notts County.

The game kicks off at Homelands on Tuesday at 7.45pm.

Extreme film-making

EXTREME SPORTS: Skaters and BMX riders have been filmed doing what they do best at the Dartford Skate Park this week for a Channel 4 documentary.

The programme will profile the town's local talent and show the impact the skate park has made on the community.

The park was opened last November and in March a new skate bowl was added. It was jointly funded by Dartford Borough Council and a Barclays Spaces for Sport grant.

David Smith at Barclays said: "The success of skate parks like this one in Dartford would not be possible without the hard work of the local community and it's fantastic to see what has happened here since the site was opened."

Skateboarding is being considered for the 2012 London Games, so some of the documentary's stars could be future medallists.

Sponsorship for Olympic hopeful who is as quick with his brain as he is on his feet

By MATT WRIGHT

A TALENTED Kent teenager has become one of the first athletes in Britain to win financial backing for the 2012 London Olympics.

Joe Durrant, 19, from Crockenhill, near Swanley, has secured a five-year sponsorship deal with a motivational speaking company, even though he is yet to represent Britain at his chosen event of the 800 metres.

Such is CSA Celebrity Speakers' faith in the former Dartford Grammar School student that they have agreed to underwrite his training costs up to the day of the 800m Olympic final in August 2012.

Joe, the reigning Kent 800m champion, is ranked sixth in the class in Britain in the under-20 age group, but already has his eyes on the No1 spot.

Improved

He said: "I was not even the best in my class when I started running as a nine-year-old, but I've improved steadily. If I can continue to progress I will have a good chance of running for Britain, and from there anything can happen."

"I just hope I can live up to my sponsor's confidence in me. It would be a dream come true to run in the Olympics in 2012. I will be 24 by then, so the timing is just right in terms of the age when I am likely to be at my peak."

Durrant, who runs for Bexley-based Cambridge Harriers, lined up his sponsorship through his coach Ray Daniel, whose brother is the CSA sales manager.

The cash will enable him to undertake warm weather training in Lanzarote this winter as well as helping with kit purchases and general living expenses.

"The Olympics are still a long way off and I've got a lot of work to do if I am going to get there," said Durrant.

"But having sponsorship in place is a huge weight off my mind and has given me a big sense of direction in where I want to be over the next couple of years."

His talent was spotted during an after-school athletics club, run by Daniel at Crockenhill Primary in the 1990s.

The fireman from Swanley, said: "I knew Joe was pretty good from the start, but having said that, he finished only 10th in his first cross country race."

"He has worked hard and made huge strides forward over the years and we expect that to continue."

Durrant's trophy cabinet includes a Kent Schools 800m gold, as well as two county junior championships at 800m and 1500m and a Southern Counties 800m silver medal.

But the youngster is not just gifted on the athletics front. He also scored an impressive 38 in his International Baccalaureate last year – equivalent to five grade As at A-level – and is off to Birmingham University later this month to study medicine.

His next target is to compete in a Great Britain vest, and with a personal best of 1min 50 secs the signs are he isn't far off.

As part of his sponsorship from CSA, which is based in Burnham, Bucks, he was given a mentoring session with double Olympic silver medallist Roger Black.

Strictly Come Dancing star Roger, now 41, was one of Britain's most successful international athletes of the 1990s, kicking off his career while a medical student at Southampton University.

"Joe is lucky because he is gifted as an athlete and is also academically bright," he said.

"I only lasted three months at university because I had to make a choice between athletics and my studies. I couldn't be a full-time athlete and a medical student, so I decided to give up my studies."

"Joe might well have to make the same choice at some stage. It will all depend on how his times progress over the next couple of years."

"He obviously has the talent to reach the Olympics, but it will be tough."

Crystal clear result for Addicks

AS if things could not get any better for Charlton Athletic following their 1-0 victory against rivals Crystal Palace, manager Alan Pardew this week received a triple injury boost, says Matt Wright.

Just three days after beating the Eagles, striker Luke Varney and defender Cory Gibbs featured against Palace in a behind-closed-doors practice match at the club's training ground.

Both players have yet to make their debuts for Charlton, with Varney having picked up an ankle injury in the first match of pre-season following his £2.5million transfer from Crewe Alexandra.

Gibbs has had to wait even longer, having missed the entire 2006/07 season following a series of knee injuries – but the duo are now on the comeback trail.

Varney played 90 minutes in GOOD FEELING: Alan Pardew and Svetoslav Todorov

the goalless draw at Sparrows Lane on Tuesday, while US international Gibbs was withdrawn at half-time as planned.

And with right-back Osei Sankofa having resumed training this week, and loan recruit Sam

Sodje available against Colchester United next Saturday following a one-game suspension, Pardew's selection problems look set to increase during the break for international fixtures.

All three could feature tomorrow night when Charlton's reserves play their first home game of the season, with Southampton providing the opposition at Ebbsfleet United's Stonebridge Road (7pm).

Even if the trio come through the second-XI test, it is unlikely that Pardew will tinker with the side that defeated Palace 1-0 for the trip to Layer Road.

Indeed, such was the euphoria following the final whistle at Selhurst Park – captain Andy Reid and loan signing Danny Mills threw their shirts into the crowd – that Charlton fans across the county have had plenty of reasons to smile over the past eight days.

Matchwinner Svetoslav Todorov said: "It's great to give the fans something to celebrate, and it's particularly good because with two weeks until the next game there will be a good feeling around the training ground."

We're the victims of our own misfortune

Kent skipper Rob Key on the bad run of luck he feels has hindered his team's County Championship season

IT IS an indication of just what a crazy season we have had in the County Championship that, instead of battling to avoid relegation over the next fortnight, we could easily have been challenging for the title.

I know at the moment that might sound like a strange thing to say, but just look at the facts.

Everyone knows by now what a farce our match at Worcestershire turned out to be back in early July. Getting just four points from that abandoned fixture, and not being allowed to replay it, hit us very hard.

But since then we were also able to play just one day of the return Championship fixture against Worcestershire at Canterbury – which meant that we have picked up only a handful of points from our two games against the bottom side, who most other teams have thrashed at least once this summer.

And, to make matters even worse, both our games against Warwickshire – who, to my mind, have been the worst team in the first division since their South African fast bowler Dale Steyn finished his spell at the club back in June – were cut short by the weather, too, when we were in position to complete comfortable wins both at Canterbury and up there at Edgbaston.

The result of all that is that we have been denied – by circumstances totally out of our control – the opportunity to chalk up another four victories.

We're talking another 30 or 40 points, and if you add those to our current Championship tally then you will see what I mean about how strange a summer it has been for us.

I've never felt we are a team who should be in the bottom four, and I don't think for the most part that we have played like a bottom half team.

In many ways, we have had a good season, but we now find ourselves facing an almighty scrap in these last two Championship matches – away at Hampshire this week and then at home to Durham from September 19 onwards – to maintain the first-division status that we, alone, have always had since two divisions were introduced in 2000.

I'm sure there will be those who, if we did get relegated, would say that we have all taken our eyes off the ball since winning the Twenty20 Cup back on August 4.

That's nonsense – it really is – but we must make sure we perform well enough in these last two games so that no one gets the chance to make those sort of comments.

One thing that could help us, I hope, is that Warwickshire play their final match at Old Trafford this coming week.

That means that, in the last round of

'In many ways we've had a good season, but we now find ourselves facing an almighty scrap to maintain first-division status' games when we are up against Durham, we will know exactly how many points we require to finish above them.

Much of course could depend on the Warwickshire v Surrey match which was due to be finishing today, but all we can do is see what happens in that game and then do what we have to do at Hampshire and against Durham.

Picture: ADY KERRY

Shane Warne, of course, is back from his rib injury and I'm sure he will be doing all he can to play a leading role in the game at the Rose Bowl this coming week. Hampshire are twice the side with him as captain, and so it won't be easy for us down there.

Warne is the best captain I have ever seen during my career – and that includes some fine international captains. He seems to get the best out of the players around him and he's always doing something different. He's got nous – that's the best word I can find for him – and it would have been amazing to have watched him captain Australia. Sadly, he never got the chance.

As for myself, I've been pleased with the way I've been batting in recent weeks. During my 75 not out against Surrey a month or so ago something seemed to click into place, and I've felt great since then.

I've worked very hard indeed to get back to where I was before my shoulder problems and the operation I needed to sort that out, and it is very gratifying to see my own game falling into place again.

Indeed, I can honestly say I now feel I am an all-round better player than I was when I was playing my 15 Test matches for England, and when I had my so far best-ever season in 2004 and scored 1,900 runs and topped the first-class averages.

From a captaincy point of view, it is also incredibly personally satisfying to show that I can score big runs as well as lead the side.

Captaincy was tough last summer, both because it was my first year in the job and because of my own struggles for fitness and with the bat following the shoulder operation.

But I can safely say these days that my motivation to do well as a batsman is intensified so much because I'm captain too of a side which I believe can develop into a really top one.

Crusaders set for finale

SPEEDWAY: Sittingbourne Crusaders take on Plymouth Devils and Boston Barracudas in a double header for their final home meeting of the season.

The Crusaders are on good form after getting their second win of the season last time out against Rye House Raiders.

This will be Plymouth's first visit to the Old Gun site and the meeting is crucial for Boston who are hoping to qualify for the title play-off.

Support for athletes

ATHLETICS: A group of elite athletes in Medway began a pilot scheme this week that will give them financial support and unlimited access to the area's sports facilities.

The Elite Athlete Support Programme is aimed at improving performances ahead of the 2012 Olympics. The first group of 15 is predominantly made up of teenage stars, including two-time national boxing champion Jordan Dennis and international trampolinist Tom Foreham.

The programme is being funded by Medway Council and the University of Kent.

The athletes on the initial 12-month trial will receive sports science support, access to all Medway sports centres and can claim up to £250 towards the cost of attending competitions or national training camps.

Addicks seek ladies

FOOTBALL: Charlton Athletic's women's side are searching for new players for their recently saved Premier League side.

The set-up was under threat due to financial difficulties after the relegation of Charlton's men's team last season.

Uncertainty over the future during the summer led to the former Women's FA cup winners losing several star performers, such as England internationals Eniola Alkuko and Casey Stonley.

Charlton Community Trust director Jason Morgan is looking for 10 players to add to the squad.

"We are looking for players who either have National Division experience or who want to prove themselves at the top level," he said.

"We are inviting players to make contact with us and come along to training sessions."

For information about the sessions call Jason Morgan on 020 8850 2866.

WALKING WOUNDED

Kent 'flat out' as injuries hit club ahead of crucial games

By DAVID PRITCHARD

KENT begin the final fortnight of the season today facing three huge games with a squad stretched to the limit.

Graham Ford's side play Yorkshire in their final Pro40 game this afternoon with just 10 fit senior players. They must win to stand a chance of promotion to the top tier.

The season finishes with two games that will determine the side's fate in the County Championship. They travel to Hampshire this week before a showdown at the St Lawrence Ground in 10 days' time against Durham.

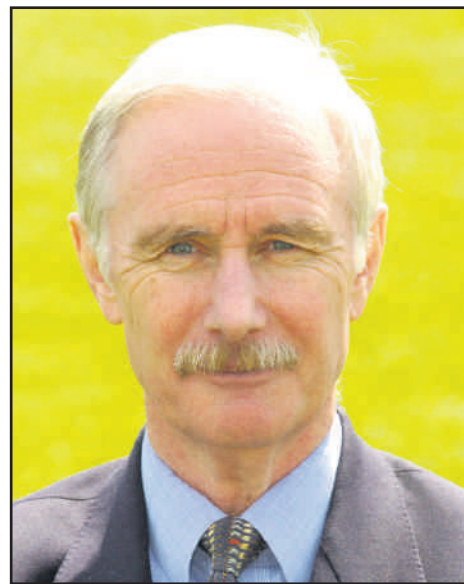

The team's situation has not been helped in recent weeks by the loss of their overseas players Andrew Hall and Yasir Arafat to international call-ups, and injuries to key players such as Ryan McLaren and Darren Stevens.

Tired

Despite the problems, Ford says the reaction of the players to their situation has been excellent.

"There are some very tired bodies in the changing room because we do not have the luxury of a big squad to rest players," he said.

"Everyone has been going flat out for some time. Sides can fade in the final weeks of the season but we haven't. They are all putting their hand up and putting extra effort in."

The extent of the injury crisis was shown on Tuesday in the Pro40 defeat to Surrey. Ford was forced to hand a debut to 18-year-old academy all-rounder Alex Blake because he did not have 11 fit senior players.

Kent made just 159 and the Brown Caps appeared to be cruising to victory, but in a thrilling climax the Spitfires almost pulled off an unlikely win. Although disappointed to lose, Ford hailed the fight-back which epitomised the spirit in the squad.

He said: "I was very proud of their effort at this stage of the season. They got stuck in and gave it their all defending a small total."

"It is that kind of cricket that I have come to know over the last couple of years and hopefully that will help them through in the long run."

As well as the immediate need to win today to be in with a chance of a Pro40 promotion, Ford believes the right result could provide the impetus the tired squad require to escape relegation in the County Championship.

"We have to keep an eye on the championship. To prepare for those we need to play well and keep the positive momentum, so the Yorkshire game is important for a lot of reasons," he said.

While fans brace themselves for a nervous couple of weeks on the pitch, members voted overwhelmingly this week to approve redevelopment plans that will change the club off the pitch.

At a meeting in Ashford on Monday, three quarters of voters backed a scheme which will make big changes at the St Lawrence Ground.

Two areas of land will be sold off to developers for houses and a 130-bedroom hotel. With the money the club will refurbish existing stands and build new facilities including a conference area, office block and physiotherapy centre.

Chief executive Paul Millman said he was pleased with the scheme's approval.

"I think there has been a momentum for the project from the members for quite some time – it was just a case of what the project ended up looking like," he said.

"We want to subsidise cricket with year-round income from non-cricket sources. That's the business we want to get in and the more we can get in on that basis, the more we can help subsidise the cricket and have a cracking good side in the middle."

Work is expected to start in January and is hoped to be finished before the start of the 2009 season.

Loan ranger Ronnie

GILLINGHAM manager Ronnie Jepson says he will keep "banging on doors" to add to his squad when the window for loan signings opens this week.

Despite signing 10 new players on permanent deals during the summer, Jepson was still trying to bring in new faces when the transfer window closed at midnight on August 31.

After a week of relative calm the scramble to bring in players on loan deals begins this week. The Gills boss is making enquiries and is keen on adding three or four players to the Priestfield line-up, but stressed he would only bring in players that would improve the squad.

"I don't want to loan players in for the sake of it – I want a bit of quality," he said.

"If that means waiting, or we keep banging on the doors until we get them, then fine. It's no use bringing chancers in who might send you the other way instead of helping you to achieve what you want."

Jepson is not ruling out bringing in players from the Premier League or the Championship, but warned there were factors that were out of his hands.

"We've asked for some good players, but that depends on other managers, our financial set-up and whether we can afford their wages. There are a lot of things that come into it."
